GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"Well for those who have no fear,
Looking seaward well assured
That the word the vessel brings
Is the word they wish to hear."

Air race to Spokane may not be won by a distinguished member of the F. F. V.'s, but it takes a recount to beat those Fast Flying Virginians.

By radio we'll get the word
By ten o'clock tonight.
But isn't it queer
That though we may hear,
And read in the papers
Of Jack's and Gene's capers,
Listen in with both ears,
Get the blous and the cheers,
We can hear the big fight,
But can't see it by sight
On account of the strictures
The law puts on the pictures!
Now isn't that law too absurd?

It begins to look as though it might be a violation of the statutes for any movie house to show a picture of the next Democratic national convention.

Some of those American tourists in France couldn't be doing any more drinking if there was a prohibition law to violate.

Listen, my children, and you shall hear—
The moonshiners have a Paul Revere.

Who rides to carry the dry alarm
Through every Frog Hollow village
And farm.

All the wet-drinking dry-voting South needs is a reliable poet to immortalize her national heroes as Longfellow has extended the local dimensions of New England heroes to national size.

Just 43 voters out of a potential electorate of 5,000 cast their ballots in the election of a mayor in Greenville, S. C. This proves that the fifteenth amendment hasn't been nullified in law-enforcement Dixie, as Senator Borah would say.

It is moved that Senator Caraway's suggestion be amended to provide for holding the next Democratic national convention at the Hermitage, by the Eternal!

Sales of tobacco break all records in North Carolina. Wait until the Antislavery League starts abolishing the cigarette!

In this tempest in a teapot nobody seems to be wondering where poor J. P. Morgan & Co. will get somebody to fill Dwight Morrow's shoes.

The appointment of Irving Leno and Oscar Underwood to the Anglo-American and Franco-American commissions confirms the general impression that they have permanently retired to private life.

It's a little difficult to understand why Senator Caraway should think his party's next convention should be held at Charlottesville. Just what relationship does the modern Democrat bear to Thomas Jefferson?

Oklahoma member of the W. C. T. U. uses the organization for damages for dropping her when the police discovered some home-brew in her ice box. Things are coming to a pretty pass in the wet-drinking fry-voting belt when the authorities think they have a right to interfere with the quaint old tribal customs.

And, on the other hand, why not fold the Democratic national convention at Soldiers Field, with Tex Rickard as permanent chairman?

Looks as though it might be the hardest-fought battle in the annals of American finance.

Leo's sandwiches are probably exhausted by this time, but he's got his toothbrush to fall back on.

The boys over there don't seem to be drinking up much champagne. Where the French made their great economic mistake was in not laying in a large supply of cown and alkies.

Our tariff note appears to be based on the theory that France can save the crow and we'll take the turkey.

The silly law which prevents the American people from seeing a prize fight on the screen doesn't hinder dogdast stations in giving 10,000,000 pairs of ears a treat.

What does the movie industry think of this discrimination in favor of the radio?

The attention of the entire more or less civilized world is now riveted on Riveters Field.

Our exclusive suspicion yesterday that Tunney's $1,000,000 is the poby prize is reflected in the betting odds as Dempsey becomes the air-haired boy.

"Miss Chicago" drops her suit, and we were thrilled until the next paragraph disclosed it was only the be against her husband.

A. G. BENTLEY KILLS SELF; FACED CHARGE OF COURT CONTEMPT

Lawyer Found Dead in Hotel Room After Shot Is Heard.

JUDGE HAD ACTED ON TRUSTEE'S PLEA

Three Orders Threatened Jail Sentence Unless $16,000 Assets Were Produced.

Alexander G. Bentley, 52 years old, a prominent attorney, living at 1627 Lamont street northwest, shot and killed himself at 6 o'clock yesterday evening in a room at the Houston Hotel, E street near Ninth street northwest. This morning he was to have been arrested on a charge of contempt of court and was facing a possible 90-day term in jail.

For a number of years, Bentley had been trustee of the estate of the late Susan B. Johnson. Last June he failed to make his annual accounting of the estate, and he was relieved of his trust. A woman attorney, Mrs. Pearl B. Klein, was appointed to succeed him.

In accordance with the rules of the court, Mrs. Klein asked Bentley to turn over to her the assets of the estate—about $8,000 in cash and $8,000 in bonds. When Bentley failed to do so, she complained to the District Supreme Court.

Held in Contempt of Court. Yesterday Justice Stafford issued three orders holding Bentley in contempt and an order committing him to serve 90 days in jail unless he purged himself of the contempt charges. A deputy marshal was scheduled to take him in custody this morning.

Bentley, who for seven years had been employed in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, rented a room on the fifth floor of the Houston Hotel yesterday morning. About 6 o'clock last evening he ordered a pitcher of ice water. Just as Ernest L. Duncan, a bellboy, was about to enter Bentley's room with the water, he heard the report of a shot. Rushing in, he found Bentley on the floor with a revolver in his hand and a bullet wound in his temple.

Registered From Baltimore. Police of the First Precinct were called and they found a note scrawled on a piece of scratch paper, directing that his brother-in-law, Charles Perry Miller, of the Evening Star, be notified.

Was Graduate of Yale. Bentley registered at the hotel yesterday morning as A. G. Bentley, of Baltimore. He had no baggage and paid for his room in advance.

Courthouse attaches said that she had been extremely loath to have Bentley adjudged in contempt, and had asked the marshal's office to be as considerate as possible in bringing him into court.

Mr. Bentley, who was the son of Judge Alexander J. Bentley, was an alumnus of Yale, having graduated from the law school in 1896. He had served with the Alien Property Custodian's office for eight years. There are no children.

He was a member of the Racquet Club, the University Club and the Yale Club of New York.

Second Marine Dead In Nicaraguan Clash

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The United States marine who was wounded in the fighting at Telapneca Monday died today. In this engagement with the followers of Gen. Salgado one marine, as previously reported, was killed outright and six of the native constabulary, officered by marines, were wounded.

Both marine and constabulary forces have been increased in the department of Nueva Segovia, as rebels and bandits are showing renewed activity.

Beauty Winner Drops Suit Against Husband

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Chicago's original "Miss Chicago of 1927," Estelle Kohloff, who yesterday started divorce proceedings against Earl McBeth, a jewelry store clerk, on charges of cruelty, today announced that she and her husband had become reconciled and that the divorce petition would be withdrawn.

Miss Kohloff was chosen "Miss Chicago of 1927" when, contrary to the rules, she was married.

Bombing in Lisbon; Communists Held

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A powerful bomb was exploded during the night in a street in the lower part of the town, damaging a house and breaking windows.

2 Air Derbies Completed; Winner of Class B in Doubt

J. S. Charles, Richmond, May Lose Event by Compilation of Elapsed Time; Holman First in Class A; Nonstop Contest Under Way.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—C. W. Holman, of St. Paul, today won the Class A transcontinental air race from New York to Spokane, but the result of the Class B cross-country derby was in doubt late tonight, with indications that computation of elapsed time would give the first place to C. W. Meyers, of Detroit.

Holman won the Class A event, for larger planes, in a race that started Tuesday morning from New York, when he flashed into the lead near the final lap and passed E. E. Ballough, of Chicago, who had led all the way until he made a false landing at Butte.

Although J. S. Charles, of Richmond, Va., had been unofficially announced as the winner when he led the Class B fliers across the finish line, Referee Goff said tonight that the final computation of elapsed flying time probably would give the first prize of $5,000 to Meyers, with second place to Leslie Miller, of Des Moines, and third to Charles.

Holman as winner of the major event, would receive a prize of $10,000 and Charles $5,000.

Six stops were made by the Class B fliers who took off Monday morning.

MOORE VOTE STARTLES PHILADELPHIA LEADERS

Anti-Vare Candidate For the Mayoralty Nomination Surprises Foes.

BATTLE MAY CONTINUE

Philadelphia, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Virtually complete but unofficial returns of the primary held yesterday show that the regular Republicans nominated their entire slate of candidates, but with greatly reduced majorities compared with the usual large vote rolled up by the organization.

The high vote polled by J. Hampton Moore, independent candidate for the mayoralty, against A. Mackey, the successful candidate, as a protest against the present leadership in the Republican party of Philadelphia, startled some of the organization leaders and has rendered most of them silent on the result. Mackey was campaign manager for Senator-elect William S. Vare last year.

Moore, the defeated candidate, said: "There is no vindication for the boss organization in the vote. The Republican machine stands rebuked and staggering. Verily, Senator-elect Vare and his cohorts may say with Pyrrhus, 'If we have such another victory we are undone.'"

Because of the large vote polled by Moore, antiorganization men are encouraging the idea of placing an independent ticket in the field against the regular Republican nominees in November.

Mackey's plurality over Moore was 74,002, according to the unofficial returns. The total vote was Mackey, 226,002; Moore, 151,930. Moore carried 12 of the 48 wards.

The unofficial figures show that Mackey polled more than 100,000 fewer votes than Vare in the senatorial primary of last year, and that Moore gathered 12 of the 48 wards.

$1,500,000 IN SILK SPILLED INTO RIVER

Four Cars of Raw Product Tumble Into the Frazer in Canada.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Four cars of raw silk, valued at $1,500,000, went into the Frazer River near Yale, 160 miles east of Vancouver, as the result of a derailment of a train today on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The train, consisting of a locomotive and sixteen cars, left Vancouver this morning after the arrival of the Japanese liner Paris Maru from the Orient with a large consignment of silk for New York. The locomotive and six cars passed over the obstruction, but the remaining ten cars left the track. Whether the silk can be salvaged is not known.

Man's Life Is Saved By Misplaced Heart

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—A freakish anatomy was credited to physicians today with saving from death William Gray, 22, of Sandy Hook, Ky., who tried to end his life by shooting in the left side of his chest.

The physicians found Gray's heart was located on the right side of his body and said that had it been in a normal position he would have died immediately.

Los Angeles Cruising Over Southern States

(Associated Press.) The Navy's giant dirigible Los Angeles was cruising last night over the Southeastern States, with the probability that it would go as far as South Carolina before retracing its flight back up the coast.

The ship, on a practice cruise, may moor to the tender Patoka, in the vicinity of the Virginia Capes, before returning to its hanger at Lakehurst, N. J.

HOOVER SEEMS SURE OF JOHNSON'S HELP IN CALIFORNIA VOTE

Secretary, If an Open Candidate, Conceded Popular Primary.

SENATOR, IN TURN, IS NOT TO BE OPPOSED

G. O. P. Chiefs in North, Not Anxious for Fight, Will Back Palo Alto Man.

By PHILIP KINSLEY.

Special to The Washington Post. San Francisco, Sept. 21.—If Herbert Hoover becomes an open candidate for the Republican nomination for President he will be able to offer a united California delegation as his first support.

The supposition in Eastern political circles that Mr. Hoover might be handicapped in his home State by his old feud with Senator Hiram Johnson is not sound, according to all the evidence at hand today.

This evidence shows that Hoover will carry the popular primary here on the plea that he is a Californian, that Senator Johnson will not oppose him and that many of the old Johnson lieutenants will be found in the Hoover ranks. No peace treaty has been signed, nor is one in prospect, but as Senator Johnson is not a candidate himself for the presidential honor, and as there is no one else in the field who touches Californian imagination or loyalty, the result is a foregone conclusion. This, of course, is on the theory that the President has eliminated himself. The Hoover strength would not go against the President.

Not Opposing Johnson.

In return for this hands-off policy by Johnson, Mr. Hoover and his advisers here are not entering an anti-Johnson candidate in the senatorial primaries, although several candidates from the Los Angeles district have been trotted out for consideration. The Hoover people are willing to let Senator Johnson go back to Washington for another term. This is the logical solution of the situation that appeals to all the professional politicians in the State and upon which the 1928 lines are forming.

The Hoover leaders, who number many of the old anti-Johnson wing, are not anxious to stir up the senator in wrathful activity against their chief, and, conversely, the Johnson supporters, realizing the new political trends in the State, due to the immense Eastern influx into Los Angeles, which has no reverence for the name and fame of Johnson, are not anxious to take on an active Hoover opposition in the primary fight for senator. California is for a Californian for President, if possible, and now that Johnson has forgotten that part of his career and

Coolidge to Receive Filipino Legislators

(Associated Press.) President Coolidge was asked yesterday to receive representatives of the Philippine legislature in connection with the appointment of a successor to the late Governor General Wood of the islands.

Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner of the islands, called on the President and informed him that Manuel Quezon and Sergio Osmeña, of the Philippine legislature, wished to call at the White House. He said Mr. Coolidge indicated a desire to confer with the two. Mr. Guevara said no names were mentioned during the White House discussion.

Carol Not to Fight King Ferdinand's Will

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Former Crown Prince Carol, it is stated in official quarters, accepts fully the conditions of the late King Ferdinand's will. At the same time it is denied that he has started a legal action to break the will.

Previous Bucharest dispatches by way of Vienna attributed to the Official Gazette the announcement that Carol was contesting the decree of the chancery court under which King Ferdinand's estate was being divided, and that the court had agreed to take his suit under consideration.

LEGION MEN VOTE FOR AIR DEPARTMENT IN UNITED DEFENSE

Mitchell Is Defeated in Demanding Aviation Secretary Now.

GENERAL WAXES HOT; WORDS STRICKEN OUT

San Antonio Gets the 1928 Meeting; Flying Circus and Social Affairs Given.

Paris, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The American Legion today had its first convention fight and Gen. "Bully" Mitchell, who not long ago stirred up much commotion in the American aviation service, lost his stand for immediate creation of a separate air department in the cabinet.

The convention, however, adopted a resolution favoring consolidation of all branches of national defense into one cabinet department.

It was a day of final cleaning up of routine, and tonight was given over to electorating in behalf of candidates for national officers of the legion and the auxiliary.

There were more patriotic ceremonies today, more big excursions to battlefields and provinces and the best air circus the French army fliers could present to startle, amaze and amuse their brothers-in-arms.

The day brought shopping, too, and exploration of Paris to see again the spots the "boys" knew in the days of "M. P." rule.

The solemn touch was given the day's proceedings when the great ossuary at Verdun was dedicated to the memory of the French who died there.

Great Ball Final Fete.

The men and women were feted at social affairs tonight and there will be a few more tomorrow. The last big affair, and perhaps the most magnificent, will be the French government ball tomorrow night. After the ball is over the legionnaires, men and women, will be free to see Europe, or if time or money, or both, should be short, they will go home.

The legion convention's open meeting, which usually furnishes plenty of color, was not lacking in that element today when a short but snappy air fight occurred. The skirmish came over a resolution recommending organization of an aviation department in the American Government. The fight, led by Gen. Mitchell, resulted in defeat for the former assistant aviation chief.

Mitchell insisted that the words "as soon as warranted" be removed from the resolution. He led a demand for immediate establishment by the Government of a separate aviation department.

The committee had reported in favor of a recommendation that such a department be organized "as soon as warranted." Mitchell, speaking from his delegate's seat, shouted, "As soon as warranted? Why, it's wanted now!" He proceeded to argue that the recommendation should not be qualified.

Words Finally Reveal.

The delegates demanded that he ascend the tribune, and, speaking from the rostrum, he went over the entire situation as he saw it. Speaking with great vehemence, he declared that the

Miss Meiling Soong to Defy Opposition of Her Family, It Is Said.

Shanghai, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Miss Meiling Soong, Wellesley College graduate and sister of Madame Sun-Yat-Sen, has declared that she intends to marry Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, former nationalist commander-in-chief. She said so tonight at a dinner of her most intimate Chinese and foreign prominent friends, but added that there would be no formal announcement for the present since she wished to keep her intentions secret because of the opposition to the marriage by her family.

She stated that, although she hopes to win her family's consent, she is determined to proceed with the marriage regardless of opposition. She added, "I sincerely love the great general."

Pilsudski Closes Diet In Poland for 30 Days

(Special Cable Dispatch.) Warsaw, Sept. 21.—Marshal Pilsudski tonight stands alone the sole master of Poland after sending an order to the senate and lower house of parliament to adjourn for 30 days.

When the senate session started this morning Marshal Pilsudski's military adjutant appeared and read a decree of prorogation signed by President Moscicki, friendly to Marshal Pilsudski. This afternoon the senators sent a protest against this violation of the constitution to President Moscicki.

CAPITAL WOMAN CLAIMS MINISTER AS HUSBAND

Missing Georgia Pastor Says, However, Virginia Resident Is His Wife.

IN MICHIGAN HOSPITAL

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—After an earlier repudiation of an admission that he is the Rev. Willis J. Jordan, missing Columbus, Ga., minister, a man registered at a hospital here under another name, today for the second time within as many days told Chief of Police A. A. Carroll that he is the missing pastor.

The second admission followed a lengthy conference with the police head this morning after the man, registered under the name of the Rev. Willis J. Jordan, told newspaper men that his identification last night as the missing minister was incorrect.

He told the newspaper men that his name was Jordan, that he was a traveling evangelist and that he had never been to Columbus.

Chief Carroll announced that the Rev. Mr. Jordan told him that, while suffering from amnesia, he came to Grand Rapids and that the affliction had caused him to wander from place to place without realizing all that he has done.

According to his earlier story, he had come to Grand Rapids to marry a woman, whom he identified as a "conscientious church worker." He was stricken with symptoms of typhoid fever, however, before the five days necessary to secure a marriage license had elapsed, and was admitted to the hospital Saturday night.

Later investigation has revealed that the Rev. Mr. Jordan is not suffering

Levine's Take-Off Blocked by Winds

Cranwell Airfield, England, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Charles A. Levine tonight decided not to hop off at dawn tomorrow on his proposed flight toward India and points East in his plane Columbia. Rain was falling and a south-east wind was blowing. After receiving unfavorable weather reports from the continent Levine decided not to fly Thursday.

Many Seeking Hand Of Japanese Prince

Tokyo, Japan, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Japanese foreign office declares that the reported betrothal of Prince Chichibu, brother of the Japanese emperor, is untrue. There are many candidates, but the lucky girl has not yet been chosen.

TUNNEY, DEMPSEY FIGHT TONIGHT FOR HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Record Crowd of 150,000 Expected to Produce $2,750,000 "Gate."

CHALLENGER LOOMS FAVORITE IN BETTING

Threat of Legal Interference Vanishes; Eckersall May Referee Bout.

By ALAN J. GOULD.

Sports Editor, Associated Press. Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—With its last legal barriers cleared today and the city swarming with the greatest fight crowd of all time, the Dempsey-Tunney battle of dollars, open letters and mixed opinions moved toward its climax of actual fist combat tomorrow night in Soldier Field's spectacular setting.

Subjects of more debate than any two other gladiators in all ring history, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey will meet in their return battle for the heavyweight championship of the world before a colorful crowd that is expected to shatter all records by numbering close to 150,000, and contributing to a "gate" of probably $2,750,000.

In its attraction of world-wide interest, in the fierce and bitter character of its preliminary debates, in the size of the stakes involved—$1,450,000 for the two fighters—as well as the magnitude of the promotion enterprises, the bout as chapter of the Dempsey-Tunney feud far outstrips any sports event in history. So-called "battles of the century" within the past few years pale by comparison with the proportions of this unprecedented struggle for gold and ring glory.

Boxer vs. Slugger.

It will pit Tunney, the soldier, masterful boxer and champion, against Dempsey, the plunging, personally magnetic slugger, badly beaten a year ago by his handsome foe, now primed for the big act of the most sensational come-back drama the boxing game has ever known.

Who will win?

The answer to that question, eagerly sought and discussed everywhere by millions, defied all the crossroads as well as on Michigan avenue. Broadway and the Rue de la Paix, will be known between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m. tomorrow night, Chicago daylight time, when the ten-round championship match to a decision will hold the little square of limelight amid a cheering mass of fandom.

So far as the strange contrasts of prebaited speculation go, Dempsey will climb into the ring a probable favorite in the betting as well as with the support of popular sentiment, but Tunney will be the choice of a majority of the assembled army of experts.

There are powerful undercurrents and crosscurrents of suspicion and doubt, always a forerunner of big heavyweight fights, but more pronounced here than ever before. There are sharp conflicts of opinion everywhere, but the general prospect is that, on its merits, the fight will be closely and sensationally fought between a resourceful champion, fully confident of himself, and a reckless, punching, throwing challenger substantially improved over his dismal form of last September.

Supporters Differ.

Tunney's supporters insist that the fighting machine that all but crushed the slugging Dempsey a year ago in the rain at Philadelphia is equipped to repeat, probably in more decisive fashion. Dempsey's backers see the old Manassas Mauler as once more the aggressive, battering plunger; as the batter that knocked out Willard, Carpenter, Firpo and Sharkey; aggressive, if not quite as fast as of yore, but far from the floundering figure of 1926.

To the experts summing up rival pros and cons, it appears that Tunney has the decided edge in speed, boxing ability, as well as three years in age and the confidence that comes to a champion.

PLAN FOR SECURITY IS GIVEN APPROVAL BY GROUP ON ARMS

Special Commission Will Be Created to Suggest Series of Agreements.

U. S. WILL NOT ASSIST PROJECT, IS INDICATION

Nansen Proposal to Prepare
New Arbitration Treaty
Also Is Indorsed.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—The meeting of the peace fabric at Geneva advanced swiftly today, bringing out in sharp relief the colors of arbitration and security as vital elements in the complete tapestry of which disarmament constitutes the third necessary element.

Unanimous approval was given by the disarmament committee, the most important organ of the League of Nations Assembly, to a project, introduced in its original form by the French delegation, whereby the League of Nations Preparatory Disarmament Commission, while arranging for a general conference on limitation and reduction of armaments, will concurrently and simultaneously on extension of arbitration agreements and a graduated system of security among the nations.

A comprehensive resolution, which is considered certain to be approved by the assembly, was adopted today, requesting the council of the league to convene a conference on limitation and reduction of armaments at the earliest possible date.

U. S. Not to Join New Body.

While the United States is expected actively to continue its cooperation with the disarmament commission, the Washington Government is not expected to assume membership on another special commission which the resolution envisages. This commission will discuss the best means of developing a working system of arbitration and security among the nations. It will labor simultaneously with the main preparatory commission, but its membership will be restricted to representatives of the league. Jurists probably will sit on the commission because of the complicated judicial nature of the problem to be considered.

This special commission will be responsible, however, to the main disarmament commission on which the United States is represented, and its study means of reinforcing the league covenant by suggesting security agreements, so that nations may graduate their commitments in proportion to the degree of solidarity existing between them and the elaborate measures which the nations would be prepared to take in supporting any recommendations or decisions of the council in the event of a conflict breaking out in any particular region.

Would Offer Armed Help.

One suggestion contained in the resolution is that a nation might declare whether all its forces or part of its military, naval or air forces could be counted on to intervene in a conflict breaking out in any special region, in support of the council's decisions or recommendations.

The enthusiastic support accorded the above resolution indicated clearly to the delegates in the assembly that the Geneva protocol of 1924, though legally

WORDS EXPUNGED

Verdun, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—Four train loads of American Legionnaires led by

Gen. John J. Pershing came back to Verdun in the annual of American military victories. With them arrived several thousand Frenchmen, including

Premier Poincare and Gen. Petain, "the savior of Verdun."

Five hundred Americans and the same number of French broke bread together at a luncheon served in the great central market, standing on a spot where 10 years ago the fiercest fighting of the war had not left stone on stone.

Under a brilliant autumn sun and a sky of limpid blue, the legionnaires revisited scenes of war-time slaughter and placed flowers beside many of the crosses marking the resting place of French and American dead.

At a great assembly, built largely with

American money as a memorial to 400,000 Frenchmen who in 1916 gave their lives defending Verdun, French orators reminded the legionnaires that the great effort the French made in successfully saving Verdun then was completed by the Americans two years later, when three of Pershing's Army

Corps—the Third, Fifth and First—assisted by the French, cleared the whole sector of the enemy in the great drive that soon led to the armistice.

Poincare Stirs Cheers.

Premier Poincare, with the exactitude for details for which he is famous, reviewed the whole story of the American offensive, citing names of divisions and dates which drew rousing cheers from his listeners,

Americans and French.

He told how the Americans took

Montfaucon, Vauxeville, Apremont,

Beaumont, Grandpre and other towns and villages liberated by the "Yanks."

He also paid tribute to the American

of the Second Army in the Woer-

the time the disabled German army

craved for mercy and the victors

granted it, November 11, the 22 American divisions engaged at the front, whose casualties amounted to 297,135

wounded and 49,000 killed, and who 37,000 prisoners, and captured 850 guns.

They thus made the great offensive directed by Marshal Foch an efficient and more from killing and discover-the fortunate effects of which were particularly felt among our own people than by any others.

Other Points Visited.

"I raise my glass in honor of the American Legionnaires. I drink to the enduring friendship of France and the United States."

Cries of "Vive la France" and "Vive l'Armee" went up, and all day long travels continued wherever the Legionnaires went in the towns and villages round Verdun and its historic fortifications, Douaumont and Fleury.

The Legionnaires at Verdun were

National Vice Commanders, Gen. Legion and Edward Hearn, general commander for Europe of the Knights of the Legion, who heard the work of his organization in the hands of Mr. Generally, bishop of Verdun.

While the four trains of Legionnaires went to Verdun, others went by special train and motor cars to Rheims, Chateau-Thierry and other cities in or near the lines where they fought during the war.

III Siamese Twins

Reported Improved

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 21 (A. P.).—

Holyoke's Siamese twins, Margaret and Mary Gibb, united in illness as in health, are making a gallant fight against an attack of influenza and their condition was reported today as slightly improved.

One of the girls only is suffering from influenza, but the other is sym-ptomatically affected and is in the illness. The twins are daughters of Mr.

and Mrs. John R. Gibb.

Cuban Pension Asked

For Widow of Wood

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—President Machado notified the members of the cabinet today that he had prepared a message to Congress asking that

Leonard Wood, widow of Maj. Gen.

Leonard Wood, former military governor of Cuba, be granted a pension. The president did not specify the amount of the pension.

An appropriation for the erection of a monument to Gen. Wood by the government of Cuba also will be recommended.

Retrieving a Dime

Costs Loser $800

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—It cost

James McGowan, of Canton, Ohio, $800

to retrieve a dime that had fallen from his pocket the day last night.

While he was bending over to pick up the coin from the floor of a restaurant at the Morrison Hotel he was robbed. A moment later he discovered his billfold containing $800 was gone.

Bite yourself an Alphabet

My dear, pretzeleering is so educational

Really, you know, this younger generation is SUCH a problem. Why Junior just simply COULDN'T learn his letters until we PRETZELIZED him. Showed him how to BITE his alphabet. Simply MARVELOUS the progress he's making. You should SEE him spell out:

MAMA

Juniors bite them. Then they eat them. There's no age limit for pretzeleering, particularly if you bite things out of O-So-Guds, made by Uneeda Bakers.

They're crispy, and crunchy, and salty. They're good to eat and good for all who eat them.

Try O-So-Guds with soup, with salad, with cheese. Serve them with tea and iced drinks. Have them handy for between-meal nibbling.

The up-and-coming grocer in your neighborhood has plenty of pretzels made by Uneeda Bakers. Ask him.

CARAWAY SUGGESTS DEMOCRATS GATHER IN CHARLOTTESVILLE

Believes Jefferson's Shadow Would Be Inspiration in Uniting Party.

FEAR M'ADOO'S MOVE WILL MEAN DEFEAT

Senator Willing to Lead Him and Smith in Prayer at Founder's Grave.

By CARLISLE BARGERON

The Democrats should meet next year in Charlottesville, Va., in the opinion of Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and when he explains the thought behind it there are a growing number of weary, strife-worn Democrats to agree with him.

This or something like it is the only hope of the party next year, as he sees it—as he sees it just at a time when William C. McAdoo returns to town prepared, it is believed, to fight Smith to the last ditch.

There is enough in the reports accompanying Mr. McAdoo, in fact, to make the office-hungry Democrats shudder with dire anticipations of the future. Whether by design or as simply a coincidence, E. F. Meredith, of Iowa, is following in Mr. McAdoo's tracks. He is expected to arrive today. Mr. McAdoo sounded a warning against "nullification" in his withdrawal statement, and followed it with a proffer to cooperate with everybody who agreed with him. There are indications that his understanding of the word "cooperate" is beginning to bear fruit.

There seems to be no special reason to assume that he is getting ready to cooperate with Mr. Meredith beyond the fact that the latter is still following him. Any talking they may have here though could just as well have been done in New York and it wasn't. It may be that Mr. Meredith just likes Mr. McAdoo's shadow.

But there seems to be enough on the Democratic horizon to prompt Senator Caraway to utter the plaintive appeal, "Let's meet at Charlottesville."

Reason Given for Suggestion.

There is the inspirational and peaceful shadow of Thomas Jefferson, away from the ballyhoo and the audience that appeal to the vanity of men, reason could be wrought out of chaos, in the senator's opinion. Everybody could get down to the rockbottom of Jeffersonian principles. Personal ambition could be soiled with sentimental appeals. Believe it or not, the senator says, there is a lot of sentiment in this world. Even strong men have it, although they try not to let it be known. If necessary, he would be willing to take McAdoo and Smith out to the grave of Jefferson and pray with them.

Personally, he believes McAdoo has made a big sacrifice and he would like to see Smith follow suit. But while McAdoo has disclaimed any personal ambitions the indications are that he is preparing to become as bad a troublemaker for the Democrats as the late William Jennings Bryan. It is believed he plans to make and it is believed further that he thinks he will be more effective now that he is out of the race than he was as a candidate. If this is true, there can be nothing but a repetition of Madison Square Garden.

That is, unless the Arkansas senator's suggestion is adopted. He is not prepared to sacrifice any part of his Arkansas plantation to have it accepted, but if it is not, the essence of it is not, he and that growing number of weary, strife-worn Democrats, of whom mention has already been made, are going to find it hard to get up any warmth over next year's presidential race.

They will do their quadrennial amount of sputtering and issuing optimistic statements, but they will not do any unnecessary railroad traveling or spend any material sums of money, and under these circumstances it will be an empty honor for the man who does get the nomination.

New Start Urged.

The Arkansas senator's idea is to have the Democrats start all over again—at the fountainhead of democracy, start with a new candidate, new details of the Jeffersonian principles to which everybody adheres in the abstract, new slogans, new banners, new everything. He does not mind the Democrats fighting; they were born fighting, so to speak, but they should go back to the source of their origin and get some inspiration and instruction as to which way to point their fight. He realizes that nominally there are more Republicans than Democrats in this country. It is for the Democrats to take advantage of the unrest—and there is unrest, all sorts of it, as the senator sees it.

He is a McNary-Haugenite so he believes there is agricultural unrest.

Now at Charlottesville they could agree upon some treatment for the agricultural unrest, the textile unrest, the unrest that is nearly everywhere prevalent except Wall street, avers Senator Caraway.

And they could do it in two days, agree upon a man, agree upon a platform and go home, all united and militant.

No Room for Audience.

You can't imagine how much can be done with men, how they can get together, when off by themselves, according to Senator Caraway's philosophy. There wouldn't be room for anybody at Charlottesville except the delegates. Good! There would be no audiences. And audiences are a factor.

Go to the Senate or House for a night session, as folks are wont to do, the senator points out. There will be men who never make a speech or rise to their feet on other occasions. But with the crowd present they just can not resist the temptation to get up and show off.

Of course, the press would get into Charlottesville some way, the senator agrees. But there would not be extra newspapers with big headlines to greet the delegates and potential candidates and flatter them and spur them on. Everybody would not be able to read his speech 30 minutes after he made it. Seriously, though, the senator believes the salvation of the party lies in getting back to Charlottesville.

Otherwise, the senator and a lot of other Democrats are simply shrugging their shoulders despairingly as another McAdoo-Smith battle looms. Probably a lot of heat will be worked up this winter.

Most likely responses will begin to come in then to the McAdoo proffer of "cooperation" and the Meredith call. It is a little warm yet. But Mr. McAdoo is not believed to be planning to let any grass grow under his feet in his anti-Smith campaign.

It is the looked-for developments, the hopelessness of the situation they are likely to create, that causes Senator Caraway to say "Let's go to Charlottesville."

HOOVER SEEMS SURE OF CALIFORNIA'S VOTE

Hoover seems a possibility they are all for him.

Sure He Is Aspirant.

The suggestion that Mr. Hoover has not entered the campaign yet is met here with smiles. The political observers have watched his activities while he was in Palo Alto, his home, this summer, after his visit to President Coolidge at Rapid City.

Mr. Hoover, it is declared, had many conferences with his political friends, and the minute the President made his announcement these friends began to swarm over the State busily. It is even said that paid workers have already been employed, but there is no evidence of a regular campaign in the way of manager, headquarters and open propaganda.

Mr. Hoover, it is said, passed out the word to keep quiet until he had held another conference with the President. This was supposed to be on August 28, but no satisfactory word yet has come down to the workers, and there is beginning to be a doubt as to just how much of the Coolidge strength Mr. Hoover may expect to inherit. He has told his supporters that he will not resign from the Cabinet, but he can not go on all through the campaign with wraps on. He must announce himself and select his delegate list before next April if he wants to carry his State.

Friendly to Hoover.

This list undoubtedly will include Johnson supporters, who are the leaders in northern California. Gov. C. C. Young, who has always been close to Johnson, is regarded as friendly to Hoover, although he has not come out with any announcement. Tom Finn, Republican leader of San Francisco, another old Johnson lieutenant, is also put down in the Hoover column. It does not mean a transfer of allegiance, but a tacit agreement of hands-off policy, a truce for the year in which Hoover and Johnson find a separate road to follow goals where they need not clash. It is hard for Senator Johnson, of course, to forget that in 1920, when his own chances were running high in the presidential field, that the Hoover people put in an opposing delegation. With two candidates that year, California got nothing, although Johnson carried his State, annual, being Hoover by 170,000. Again in 1924 many prominent Hoover people were active in support of the Coolidge delegates, when Johnson was again in the race. And that year Johnson failed. He believes that his ancient enemies used Hoover as a tool to defeat him.

But, however lukewarm the senator's emotion may be toward Mr. Hoover in the White House, his own future must be considered.

PROGRESSIVE ALLIANCE AIM OF CHICAGO PARLEY

Bryan-Wilson Democracy Is Sought, Says Durbin; Not Boosting Man.

PREDICTS G. O. P. DRIFT

Kenton, Ohio, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Formation of a Progressive-Democratic alliance along the lines of the old Bryan-Wilson democracy, and not the boosting of any particular presidential candidate is to be the purpose of a proposed conference of Progressive-Democratic leaders in Chicago, early in December, according to W. W. Durbin, for many years Ohio Democratic State chairman, who is making arrangements for the conference.

Following the announcement in New York yesterday by Patrick H. Callahan, of Louisville, dry Democratic leader of Kentucky, and Catholic Church layman that such a conference is being arranged, Mr. Durbin today issued a statement from his home here on its purposes. The conference, he said, would be merely for the purpose of keeping the party along Progressive-Democratic lines to conduct the campaign upon live economic issues and not permit side issues to divert the people from the real things which interest them.

"It will be not for the purpose of discussing candidates or boosting a particular aspirant," he said. "Mr. Durbin's idea is that if the party is kept along progressive lines, the candidate will appear at the proper time who can unite it and make an effective appeal to Progressive Republicans and independent voters with hopes of success next year. He contends that the party is greater than any man or set of men and takes no stock in threats of defeat, if any particular candidate is not nominated."

"The average Democrat and Progressive in the country does not care who the candidate is, so much as what the candidate represents. The great majority of Democrats and Republicans in this country are progressive. This was shown in 1912, when Wilson and Roosevelt, both progressives, received more than 10,000,000 votes, as against Taft, a reactionary, who received 3,000,000. A conference of this kind must be one to plan for victory and not for defeat. Therefore, it must not concern itself so much with candidates as with principles that appeal to the country and which, once adopted, will bring forth a proper representative who can carry these principles into effect."

Mr. Durbin broke with Gov. A. V. Donahay soon after the governor assumed office, but the governor's friends say their friendship has been at least partly restored and that Durbin is not the kind to hold a grudge—that he forgave and forgives.

Mr. Durbin says the call for the conference is to be sent to a score or more of Democratic national leaders.

ered in approximately 11,000 more votes than the combined vote of Senator George Wharton Pepper and Clifford Pinchot. Vare's opponents in the triangular battle for the Republican senatorial nomination.

John Monaghan, who gave up the Common Pleas Court judgeship to run for the Republican nomination for district attorney, won by approximately 103,883 plurality over Charles Edwin Fox, incumbent. Mr. Fox was refused the Republican organization support and continued in the field as an independent. He claimed that the organization refused to support him because of his activity in prosecuting election law violators, 39 of whom he succeeded in having convicted.

Mexican Planes Given Right to Enter U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Permission for two Mexican airplanes to enter the United States in order to participate in the Lindbergh reception ceremonies at Tucson, Ariz., today has been granted by the State Department. At the request of the governor of Arizona, the department notified the embassy in Mexico City of its action for the information of the Mexican government. The planes are expected to go from Sonora to Tucson.

THE MORROW APPOINTMENT.

Editorial comment in the East touching upon the appointment of Dwight W. Morrow as Ambassador to Mexico was very kindly. Even the extreme Democratic newspapers either praised the President's selection unreservedly or acknowledged that the new diplomat is well equipped for the successful fulfillment of his mission. The East, of course, no longer runs in terror from the Wall Street "bugaboo." It has come to know that "big business" is not necessarily bad. It is only natural that in this section Mr. Morrow's capabilities should be recognized. There may be a different feeling in the West, where the dominance of money along the Atlantic seaboard is often bitterly resented.

The initial response to the President's announcement does little, however, to justify the fears and alarms expressed by certain members of the Senate. The contrast between editorial and senatorial opinion leads to the conclusion that the latter was inspired primarily by partisan considerations. The matter of Mr. Morrow's confirmation can be made a party football. The Senate has on previous occasions demonstrated its ability to play politics where its "advice and consent" has been sought by the Chief Executive.

It will be difficult for opposition to Mr. Morrow to take on actuality. The effort to make political capital can only be furthered by impugning the motives of a man who is above such suspicion. The known reputation and accomplishments of the new ambassador are beyond the shafts of the demagogue. What seemed at first an excellent weapon with which to harass the President and his administration, may prove a hard one for the Democrats and progressives to handle without danger to themselves.

A FOOLHARDY VENTURE.

Miss Ruth Elder is determined to make her transatlantic flight. For the past few days she and her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, have been busy making final tests and considering alternate routes over which the plane, American Girl, will be piloted. In the face of adverse public opinion, and ignoring the admonition from the chief of the New York weather bureau that increasingly frequent storms would make a transoceanic flight virtually impossible until late next spring, Miss Elder is determined to go through with her plans.

The public should realize now, before the flight begins, that there is but little chance of success. The Elder venture is in the nature of a stunt. Nothing is to be gained therefrom, save that the leader, if it can be completed, will have earned the rather dubious honor of being the first woman to have flown between the United States and Europe. Her plane may be of the best. Plans and preparations possibly may not have been slighted. The best of equipment may have been stowed aboard. Nevertheless, the weather will be against her, and it is highly probable that she is "advancing where angels fear to tread."

The Elder flight should not be attempted. Since its leader is determined to go through with it, the public must realize now that if catastrophe follows, it can not be considered a blot on the progress of aviation. The airplane, when used with discretion, is a sound and safe transportation agency. When it is abused it is no more safe than an automobile in the hands of an incompetent person. If Miss Elder and Capt. Haldeman lose their lives in this silly venture, the loss should not be charged against aviation, but against foolhardiness which, through the ages, has always taken its toll.

PHILADELPHIA'S VERDICT.

The opposition to the seating of William S. Vare as United States senator from Pennsylvania is based upon the primary expenditures made in his behalf. Since that time the citizens of Pennsylvania have had two opportunities to express themselves. The voters of the State as a whole said unmistakably that they wanted Vare to represent them in the Senate. The residents of Philadelphia on yesterday registered a willingness to have their municipal affairs administered by the Vare machine. The independent candidacy of J. Hampton Moore, around which all opposition to Vare centered, went down to overwhelming defeat.

One of the main points used by those who sought to depose the Vare faction in Philadelphia was the fact that his "slate" was composed of men who had been associated with the senatorial campaign. Harry A. Mackey, successful candidate for mayor, was the manager of the Vare candidacy for the Senate in the primary and election. Thomas W. Cunningham, organization candidate for sheriff, may be held in contempt by the Senate for his refusal to reveal his part in the Vare senatorial campaign. The remainder of the ticket was composed of men who were thoroughly in sympathy with Vare.

The issue in the election was, therefore, Vare, as his enemies sought to make it. The Philadelphia leader won. The citizens of Philadelphia have expressed a desire, just as the State as a whole did, to accept his control. The money that he spent in his campaign for the Senate was well known to all of the voters. They decided, very evidently, that the expenditure of the amount testified to was not in itself sufficient to deprive Vare of the right to hold office.

The voters of Pennsylvania have, therefore, on two occasions overruled the contention of many senators that the mere use of money, regardless of the purposes to which it was put, is prima facie evidence of corruption. They have specifically stated that they wish Vare to be their senator. His constitutional qualifications have never been questioned. The contest brought by his opponent is acknowledgedly without hope of success. Unless the Senate intends to substitute arbitrary selection of its members for the ballot box and the Constitution, what ground remains for denying Pennsylvania's right to send the man of its own choice to the Senate?

TONIGHT'S FIGHT.

National interest will center tonight upon the arena in Soldiers Field, Chicago, where Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, and Jack Dempsey, challenger, are to meet. The principals, most vitally interested in the success of the undertaking, have done their best to cast doubt and suspicion upon the venture. Despite them it will be the largest and most profitable spectacle which the world of sport has yet known. More than 170,000 persons may be accommodated within the stadium. Leaders of business and in public life will jostle in and out of the arena with gamblers, touts and bootleggers. Millions of others will listen to the details of the encounter by radio.

The total amount paid for the privilege of being "among those present" will, it is estimated, approach $2,500,000, and will certainly surpass in a financial sense all previous records. The gate receipts will more than double those of any world's series, the only other sporting event comparable in magnitude and public enthusiasm. The price of seats 100 yards distant from the scene of battle will be $40. No spectator may even enter the stadium for less than $5. The champion and challenger will fight for but ten rounds, an inclusive test of their respective abilities, if there is no knock-out. The facts are almost fantastic, but the money which the public has already contributed is real.

The two men have met once before. The fact that Tunney was a decisive victor appears to have been largely discounted by pugilistic partisans. There is a general feeling that there was something queer about the Philadelphia battle. The extent of this belief needs no substantiation other than the interest in tonight's bout. Dempsey has more support than has ever been given a defeated champion. He will enter the ring an even money choice, if not the favorite. There will be a scant 30 minutes of fighting, which the majority of those present will have difficulty in seeing from their distant seats. The outcome of the previous meeting between the two men will either be confirmed or further disputed. Tunney will receive $1,000,000 or more, win, lose or draw. Dempsey will get $450,000. Tex Rickard will take what is left. The world will return to a period of sanity until the "ballyhoo" starts for the next heavyweight championship.

Measured in public interest and in cash the fight is a major matter. Its consequences are too minute to cause even the slightest disturbance. It is a temporary and frothy upheaval in the life of a nation which can afford to pay two bruisers $2,500,000 for such entertainment as they may provide.

TEAMWORK ESSENTIAL.

The principal trade and civic bodies of the city have agreed to stand together in the future on all problems affecting the welfare and progress of Washington. With the slogan "Teamwork for a Greater Washington," no longer will each individual group offer its own pet ideas and jealously fight those originating with the others.

The decision to unite on all matters affecting the future of the city is wisely made. In the final analysis there could be no diverse opinion regarding matters of this sort. Each of the organizations which have joined in the cooperative effort, even each individual citizen, has only one interest regarding the development of the city, and that is to make it a better place in which to live.

There is grave danger when too many diverse suggestions are made that all will be lost in the general confusion and that none will be adopted. There is also the possibility, when no clearing house is available, that what may seem desirable to one group may appear to be detrimental to all the others. A house divided against itself can not progress. The one which presents a united front, however, can attain almost any proper end.

There is one possibility in this connection which should not be overlooked. Suggestions are bound to be brought forward which will please only part of the combined organizations, and upon which a division may be hard to prevent. Under no circumstances, however, should it be permitted. If concerted action can not be obtained by compromise, the suggestion should be dropped forthwith so that repetition of the old picture, of organizations which should be standing together fighting among themselves, can be prevented. Teamwork can do much to guide the future development of the Capital City. It must, however, be of the genuine variety.

AN END TO USURY.

On January 1, the British government will make professional usury illegal. In the meantime, usurers are making a concerted rush to get as much money lent at exorbitant rates as possible. The evil has been rampant in Great Britain for many years, money lenders having adopted the practice of sending circulars broadcast just before quarter days, the beginning of school terms, and even on the announcement of births and deaths, in the hope of finding victims who are in need of money. Frequently they send their prospective customers a promissory note requiring only the signature of the borrower to secure a sum of money—always considerably less than that which appears on the face of the note. After January 1, however, money lenders will no longer be permitted to send out circulars, and the rates of interest they are entitled to receive will be strictly limited.

A similar reform is under way in the United States. Under the leadership of the Russell Sage Foundation a uniform small loan law has been passed in 24 States, legislation aimed at the loan shark has been passed in 4 other States, and similar laws are pending in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Illinois and Michigan. Several days ago a conference was held between representatives of the foundation and delegates from 42 better business bureaus located in the larger cities, during which the resources of the foundation were pledged to end the activities of the loan shark and salary buyer.

There is no more disreputable parasite. Preying upon the unfortunate exclusively, the loan shark offers his services as though he were a benefactor, but charges a fee which ultimately drives his victim to utter financial ruin. He strikes only when unhappy circumstances have made the obtaining of money a paramount necessity. He negotiates his nefarious transaction when his victim is so bewildered by financial pressure that he does not question the cost of the relief offered. He grows wealthy on the misfortunes of others—lives in luxury on the profits gained by plunging his victims into the depths of financial misery.

Attempts to end the activities of loan sharks and salary buyers deserve universal public support. The United States is fortunate that as powerful an organization as the Russell Sage Foundation is behind the project. England has done well to place the entire strength of the government into the battle. Those who are willing to supply funds to individuals when misfortune strikes or emergency exists, charging therefore only a fair rate of interest, fill a definite economic need, and their operations should be encouraged. The sooner the disreputable money lender is driven out of existence, however, the better it will be for every one.

EASY MARKS, CITY AND COUNTRY.

Commending to the highest degree the efforts of the Better Business Bureaus, and incidentally paying tribute to the press of the country for their efforts in educating the public in the matter of fraudulent securities, E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address delivered in New York, warned that only through constant and persistent education can the public be protected against the fraudulent stock jobbers.

Mr. Simmons appeared to be particularly concerned over the farmer who has funds to invest, because "the farmer is likely to live far from the centers of population, where the facilities for safe investing can be more readily placed at his disposal, and for this reason the sale of fraudulent securities to the farmer seems to me a particularly important matter at the present time."

If Mr. Simmons reads the city papers as carefully as he should, he might easily learn that of the "suckers who are born every minute" the proportion "per hundred thousand population" is far greater among urban residents than among those pursuits are bucolic. The salesman of fraudulent stocks and similar securities, if consulted by Mr. Simmons, would be very likely to report that the city is a far more fertile field for his peculiar talents than the rural communities. Furthermore, in spite of the comparative remoteness of the soil tiller from the centers of population where "investments are easy," that individual has grown quite wise in recent years. The farmer as a class is far better posted than the city dweller, and the reason is obvious. The very remoteness of the agriculturalist from the centers of investment serves to give him more time for reading and keeping himself posted. Every farmer with the desire to "invest" and with the funds for investment is naturally intelligent enough to do some thinking. The rural mail service makes it possible for him to read the daily papers on the day they are published, and the telephone and radio keep him in touch with the markets, even if they do not facilitate his visits to those "investment centers."

The farmer of today does not buy gold bricks, and the individual who has a lot of counterfeit money "printed from plates stolen from the Engraving Bureau" finds customers far more easily in Gotham than in Podunk or Four Corners.

Mr. Simmons' talk is timely, addressed as it was to men who are supposed to aid the city merchant in avoiding the snares of salesmen of fraudulent securities, but he need not have so much fear for the investing farmer. That canny citizen is not the "sucker" that he was before the advent of the telephone and the rural delivery service.

THE IRISH ELECTION.

The Irish issue has been referred to the electorate without definite determination. The gains which the Cosgrave government and the supporters of Eamon de Valera have made have been at the expense of the lesser parties. The majority of 6, which it will have in the Dail, can be of but slight comfort to the government. It is composed of a coalition which may dissolve at any moment under the stress of issues not now apparent. Little good can come of the present stalemate. It only means further cessation in Ireland's development. Another election at an early date is out of the question. No new issues have arisen, and the rival parties lack the funds to finance such a test.

It has been suggested that the failure of either dominant faction to obtain absolute control may lead to compromise. Many members of the government and De Valera parties were formerly united under the Sinn Fein banner. In the days before the ratification of the treaty between England and the Irish Free State they worked shoulder to shoulder. The issue which divided them since was the oath of allegiance to the crown. The Fianna Fail refused for long to pledge its fealty to the king. Its members absented themselves from the sessions and actions of the Dail. They have abandoned this principle and become a part of the legislative machinery. Slight yielding on both sides and the hope of a united Ireland may be realized.

PRESS COMMENT.

L'Enfant Vindicated.
St. Louis Post Dispatch: The circles into which the streets of Washington, D. C., twist themselves every few blocks are a source of constant wonder to tourists in that City of Magnificent Distances. What are they for?

The keeper of the Washington jail has just reported that he had 11,960 prisoners during the last fiscal year, of whom 5,874, or 49.2 per cent, were jailed for drunkenness. The number of drunks set a new all-time record for the city, counting the years both before and after prohibition.

L'Enfant took a long look into the future. He saw the triumph of the Antislavery League and Andy Volstead. He gave the people of the Capital City circles to walk in, and time has vindicated his judgment.

Valuable Corn.
Newcastle Times: Silk cloth can now be made from cornstalks, declares the chief chemist of the Iowa State College, who exhibits the fabric he made this way. Cornstalks can be made to produce adhesives, charcoal solvents and embalming fluids. He estimates that a 100-acre field of corn would produce enough of such products to make the owner $5,000 profit if he controlled the manufacture. When that time comes, all the farms will be absorbed by some trust or chain store.

Doughboy French.
Baltimore Sun: Bitter sorrow is gnawing at the hearts of Americans now in Paris. Was not one of their great wartime experiences the discovery that they could speak French and be understood? And now they—some of them—say that the language has changed beyond recognition; and, as if to rub it in, a French newspaper comes out with its first page in English. One can only say that French tact has failed in the crisis. To take from even the humblest doughboy his sublime, because unfounded, faith in his linguistic powers is utter cruelty.

He Will.
Brooklyn Eagle: Vice President Dawes has declined two free ring-side seats for the Tunney-Dempsey fight. Doubtless he expects to see all the scrapping he cares for when Congress meets.

Even Chicago.
New York Sun: The center of industry has moved near Chicago, showing that a center of industry isn't afraid of anything.

Who Wouldn't?
Detroit News: The janitor says he would fight Dempsey, Tunney, a buzz saw and one family of irritable wild cats for $1,000,000.

She's Suing for Divorce.
Boston Transcript: What has become of the old-fashioned prima donna who used to take a champagne bath every day?

Wireless Power.
Philadelphia Public Ledger: Householders will not be too hopeful about the prediction made by Admiral Bullard, of the Federal Radio Commission, that within three or four years high-frequency currents entering the home without wires will be doing the work of the current now transmitted through wires. In the light of what the radio has done and is already doing, it would be rash to brand the admiral's forecast as totally impossible. What he sees as likely to come about in the immediate future is, however, very different from the applications of radio energy thus far achieved. It is one thing to transmit and amplify a delicate electric im-

Reviving Wisdom
—By ROBERT QUILLEN—

MANY years ago there lived on an island in the Pacific a race of beautiful people. The adults wore few garments and the children, none at all. The climate was ideal; life was simple and easy; the follies that men call vices were unknown. It may be well to add that this is not a fairy tale, but a bit of history.

One day a ship appeared and white men went ashore. These white men—but one degree lighter than the natives—were "civilized." They wore clothing.

In the years that followed white men selected native brides and assumed control of the island. They taught the natives to cover their nakedness and to worship God, and they scattered among them the white man's diseases.

Now the natives of unmixed blood are very few. "Civilization" is in control—fully clothed, disease ridden, in all ways unlovely.

When the white man conquers, his first efforts to civilize the primitive consists in a ruling that all shall cover their bodies with cloth.

Hear, now, the modern mother—the "civilized" mother, who has learned much in the schools and kept abreast of science. She has a small son who is chief of her treasures, and the little rascal has no other adornment than a loin cloth.

"I don't believe in clothing for children," says she. "I keep Billy in the sunshine as much as possible, because sunshine prevents rickets and tuberculosis, and I keep him as naked as I dare because a tanned skin is a healthy skin."

"His dad and I spend as much time as we can on the beach, because we know that disease germs can't live in the sunshine and open air, and we let the rain pelt us when it will because we know that is good for the skin and hair."

"Isn't it wonderful how much science has taught us in this generation!"

You can't ever tell. Mr. Coolidge didn't choose a lot of things Congress did within recent years.

No man likes to have his wife call at the office. It makes him feel and seem so much less authoritative.

People couldn't spell better in the old days. They just made a wiggle with the pen; a typewriter would have shown them up.

Some people go right on spending their money for beefsteak and things when they haven't a car to their name.

So many times in the Nation's history and that it should occupy for the sake of the Nation's good.

What the Democratic party needs is not only leadership that visualizes it as a medium of national progress, but a program by which its principles and policy can be effectively applied.

We Suppose So.
Asheville Times: Senator Glass says that prohibition is intended to make liquor hard to get. We suppose, then, that a law's reach should also exceed its grasp.

Economically Necessary.
Des Moines Tribune: It is claimed that the death rate is getting lower all the time. But they will have to get people to live longer if all those new cars are to be paid for.

Who'd Want London.
Kansas City Star: Ground shifts under the City of London have shaken down several buildings and caused big cracks in the streets. Now the former Kaiser will be glad he didn't take London after all.

Paying the Debt.
Cincinnati Enquirer: Anyway, when the legionnaires return from Paris the French ought to be able to send a war-debt installment back with them.

Busy Ice Men.
Indianapolis News: Ice men who postponed a convention because they were too busy to attend, might have sent the coal dealers as proxies.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Study of Constitution.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have had "Constitution Week," but as a people have we paid attention to it as we should have done? Our system of government is, to say the least, a complex system, and one not thoroughly understood by the mass of the people. They know we have a Constitution, and that it is the organic law on which the government is based, and they may know many of its provisions, but to a thorough and a rightful understanding of it, a knowledge of its sources must be known. It is unlike any other form of government the world has known. England has a constitution, mostly an unwritten one, but Great Britain is a nation compact in its government, while ours is a combination, some powers belonging absolutely to each of the several component parts.

From bills introduced in Congress and from some that pass that body we have a right to reach the conclusion that the Constitution is a sealed book to our legislators. One great writer on the Constitution thus defined the difference between the powers of Congress and those of State legislatures: "Congress has only such powers as are absolutely given by the Constitution, while a State legislature has every power not forbidden by the Constitution." To my mind the study of the Constitution should be a prominent part of the education taught in our public schools. This teaching should not be by lectures alone, but by study and recitation. The story of why the country was practically forced to adopt a Constitution, uniting the States in one great Union, should be drilled into the minds of every pupil in our schools. If this is done they will reverence and love that noble instrument which binds us together. Necessity was the parent of our Union, and to make that Union perpetual a Constitution became a necessity. "Constitution Week," as we observe it, comes during school vacation. At least one week in every year should be designated for special talks of the Constitution in all the schools of the land.

AIR TRAVEL IN EUROPE.

The Comte de La Vaux president of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the membership of which covers 27 countries, recently completed an aerial tour of Europe, in the course of which he flew 8,500 miles in 26 different machines, with pilots of 17 nations, at an average speed for the whole distance of 83 miles an hour. In an account of his experiences he says that they exceeded his most optimistic expectations and threw a new light upon the progress of aviation in Europe.

M. de La Vaux found that in the great majority of European countries aviation had the active interest and support of governments. He was particularly struck by the energy and progress shown in Germany. Not only did air lines cover every part of the country itself, but machines were being built into the remotest corners of Europe and Asia. In two years, he prophesied, German "super-aeroplanes" will carry their passengers to the gates of Peking. Commercial aviation from the Balkans to the Baltic is in the hands of German enterprise. Services are regular, aerodromes are easily accessible, and people think no more in Germany of boarding an aeroplane than of getting into an omnibus. German commercial aeroplanes have only one serious rival—the Dutch Fokker, which flies on certain Western European lines. Money is abundant, as towns and states contribute sums in excess of the government subsidy. M. de La Vaux saw only one organization—Imperial Airways—which could be compared with the Luftwaffe, and that on a much smaller scale.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

THE British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, is expected to return to Washington Tuesday or Wednesday of next week from Manchester, Mass., where he has passed the summer. Lady Isabella will probably return with him.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Zdenek Fierlinger, arrived in New York yesterday on the Paris after passing four months in Europe. He will come to Washington today.

The Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Hubert Work, has as his guest for a few days former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield, of Cleveland.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg, who are visiting in St. Paul, Minn., will return here about September 26.

Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, who are now in Massachusetts, will return the first of next week.
Senator and Mrs. William H. King have returned for the season and have taken an apartment in the Highlands. They passed the summer in the Berkshire shires, near Williamstown, occupying Mrs. Otis Belmont's country place.

Mr. Henry Getty Chilton, Acting Counselor of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Chilton will return from Manchester, Mass., on Sunday.

Lips Going on Tour.

The Counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation and Mme. Lips will start today in tomorrow for a two-month trip to California.

Maj. W. H. S. Alton, assistant military attaché of the British Embassy, has returned from the summer embassy at Manchester, Mass.

Mr. Vinila Petala, the newly appointed secretary of the Rumanian Legation, returned yesterday from Newport where he went to present his credentials to the minister, Cretianu.
Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Commercial Secretary of the Canadian Legation, who has passed the summer in Canada, returned yesterday with her children.

Senor Manuel de la Vaga, former Cuban Ambassador to Argentina, is passing a few days here. Senor de la Vaga was accompanied to this country by his daughter who has entered Bryn Mawr College. He will remain a few days in Philadelphia and then return here to pass the winter. Senora de la Vaga will join him later in the season.

Mrs. Frederic R. Harris, wife of Rear Admiral Harris, and her daughter, Miss Florence Harris, who are traveling in Europe, have gone from Montreux, Switzerland, and are at the Grand Hotel des Bains, Lido-Venice, where they will remain for three weeks. They will visit Genoa, Pisa, and Florence before going to Cannes for the winter.

Mr. Y. Oka, of the Japanese Embassy, entertained at dinner Tuesday on the Willard roof.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George F. Downey, with Mrs. Fairfax Downey, have arrived at Bretton Woods, N. H., where they motored to remain until the end of the season.

The Homemaker

MANY of us will have cold pot roast on our table this morning and for its consumption I have for you a rather unusual recipe. Should the pot roast crumble in slicing and be too broken to treat in the manner described in the recipe, take a small amount of the gravy, add to it a small amount of cooked rice, a whole unbroken egg and salt and pepper to taste, and add this mixture to the crumbled pot roast, allowing considerably more of the meat than of the mixture in making up the outfit. A bit of onion flavor may be added to these ingredients if desired. The gravy may be made from a bouillon cube and water, if none remains from last evening's meal, or made by placing small crumbled pieces and trimmings from the pot roast into a small saucepan, covering with a small amount of water, and simmering until a beef stock results. This stock, thickened, may take the place of the leftover gravy.

MENU.

Potted Beef Outlets
Fried Potatoes
Baked Hominy Grits
Dressed Lettuce
Apple Pudding

Potted Beef Outlets.

Sliced cold pot roast in slices about a fourth of an inch in thickness and with care that the slices do not crumble, dip them in beaten egg and then cracker crumbs, the latter having been mixed with salt and pepper to season. Fry in hot fat (either deep fat or shallow, in an iron frying pan) until the outlets become a golden brown. Serve on a hot platter garnished with sprigs of parsley. In place of the fried tomatoes suggested in a small amount of tomato sauce highly spiced with cayenne and Worcestershire sauce, may be used with the meat and string beans added to the menu as the string vegetable.

Baked Hominy Grits.

1 small cupful grits.
8 eggs.
1½ cupfuls sweet milk.
Into a pint of salted boiling water stir hominy and cook about an hour. Remove from the fire and add other ingredients well beaten together. Pour into a buttered casserole and bake slowly for an hour.

Apple Pudding.

1 cupful flour.
1 cupful sugar.
1 cupful milk.
½ cupful butter.
8 eggs.
3 cupfuls apples.
½ cupful raisins.
1 cupful chopped walnuts.
Mix ingredients thoroughly. Bake for one-half hour and serve with caramel sauce.

Caramel Sauce.

(Fondant sauce may be substituted.)
2 cupfuls brown sugar.
½ cupful butter.
2 tablespoonfuls flavoring.
½ cupful cream or milk.
2 eggs.
Pinch of nutmeg.

Mix the ingredients, cook in a double boiler, add flavoring last and cool before serving.

And now an answer to a question from a friend:

Your dinner menu is on its way to you, Mrs. Dodd, and it is an "easy" one, as you requested. As for the rug, there is one labor-saving hint which I am sure will help with washing them, and I do not in the least blame you for wanting to care for them yourself. Hooked rugs of the sort, even lovely hand-made braided ones, are neither expensive nor easy to obtain, and taking care of those we have is but the better part of valor. The ordinary plunger, known as a sink plunger, with a good long handle, will assist you greatly. It pulls the dirt out when worked up and down in the materials, and is sure in its result. This information came to me from a Mrs. Wilson, who has found the system most satisfactory.

All communications regarding help and suggestions for the Homemaker should be addressed to Miss Nancy Carey, care of The Washington Post.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

The pointer for today:

AFTER A NO TRUMP, A DOUBLE IS NOT TO WORK BETTER THAN A SUI-T-BID WHEN TWO OR MORE ANSWERS WOULD BE SATISFACTORY.

This week we are considering twenty West hands. South (Dealer) having bid one No Trump. What should West declare?

NO. 9
♦ J-X
♦ A-X
♦ K-X-X

NO. 12

No. 9. Pass. This hand probably can keep the adverse No Trump from going game, but stands little chance of making game by forcing a partner to bid, and still less by bidding Clubs. Hands of this type are frequently held; they have the appearance of considerable strength but, with them, any declaration but a pass over a No Trump would be a serious error.

No. 10. Pass. The hand has not the right tricks needed for a suit-bid. It has the high-card strength for a double, but could permit the partner's answer to stand only if made in Hearts (which is unlikely) or in Diamonds (which would not be apt to produce game). An adverse game at No Trump is improbable, but generally a hand of this type will work better with a pass than with any other declaration.

No. 11. Double. The hand has the high-card strength to justify the declaration and may readily produce game if the partner gives a Major answer. If the partner answers with a Minor, the hand has a sound Heart bid. Three Hearts game probably can be saved if an adverse No Trump be allowed to stand, there is too good a chance of winning a game to make a pass advisable.

No. 12. Two Hearts. Game at Hearts is quite probable; there is but slight chance that a double would produce an answer from partner that would work as well as a Heart bid. Three Hearts instead of two would be justified, but with the strength of the hand, pre-emption seems unnecessary.

The four hands to be considered tomorrow are:

Hands of this type are frequently held; they have the appearance of considerable strength but, with them, any declaration but a pass over a No Trump would be a serious error.

No. 14. Pass. The hand has not the right tricks needed for a suit-bid. It has the high-card strength for a double, but could permit the partner's answer to stand only if made in Hearts (which is unlikely) or in Diamonds (which would not be apt to produce game). An adverse game at No Trump is improbable, but generally a hand of this type will work better with a pass than with any other declaration.

No. 15. Double. The hand has the high-card strength to justify the declaration and may readily produce game if the partner gives a Major answer. Three Hearts game probably can be saved if an adverse No Trump be allowed to stand, there is too good a chance of winning a game to make a pass advisable.

No. 16. Two Hearts. Game at Hearts is quite probable; there is but slight chance that a double would produce an answer from partner that would work as well as a Heart bid. Three Hearts instead of two would be justified, but with the strength of the hand, pre-emption seems unnecessary.

No. 17. Pass. This hand probably can keep the adverse No Trump from going game, but stands little chance of making game by forcing a partner to bid, and still less by bidding Clubs. Hands of this type are frequently held; they have the appearance of considerable strength but, with them, any declaration but a pass over a No Trump would be a serious error.

No. 18. Pass. The hand has not the right tricks needed for a suit-bid. It has the high-card strength for a double, but could permit the partner's answer to stand only if made in Hearts (which is unlikely) or in Diamonds (which would not be apt to produce game). An adverse game at No Trump is improbable, but generally a hand of this type will work better with a pass than with any other declaration.

No. 19. Double. The hand has the high-card strength to justify the declaration and may readily produce game if the partner gives a Major answer. If the partner answers with a Minor, the hand has a sound Heart bid. Three Hearts game probably can be saved if an adverse No Trump be allowed to stand, there is too good a chance of winning a game to make a pass advisable.

No. 20. Two Hearts. Game at Hearts is quite probable; there is but slight chance that a double would produce an answer from partner that would work as well as a Heart bid. Three Hearts instead of two would be justified, but with the strength of the hand, pre-emption seems unnecessary.

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

THE magicians and mind-readers who train themselves and their assistants to register every object they see—by passing a shop window—are cultivating habits of observation which we should all do well to copy. I know of a man who used to make his son give him a list of articles scattered haphazard on a table, remembering them in so many moments, and being properly prepared for inaccuracy, too. The son told me that by this method he had acquired a power of noticing things almost unconsciously, but quickly and precisely, which, in an adventurous life, had often stood him in good stead.

I think it would be an excellent idea if we all tried this plan with ourselves and children. It ought to be amusing as well as instructive to see how much we don't notice that we should. I am, myself, a perfect goose in this locality. I have no sense of direction. When I come out of a theater I can't tell which way I am going, and in parts of New York which I ought to know well I have almost lost myself on a snowy night when the lampost signs were hidden. By trying to remember certain buildings, or parts of buildings, or oddly shaped windows or chimneys, a particular railing or cornice, I have improved a little, but not much, for unless I have some particular reason for wanting to remember, I don't make myself.

I am vexed enough with other idiots, however. The other day I came home from a holiday and found my housekeeper had taken out and dusted all my books. There were hardly any volumes together that belonged to me. Even sets were divorced by stray numbers of other sets forced between them and a good many were put in upside down. Now, I may be lost coming out of the subway on a rainy day, but I couldn't put any one's books back on their shelves in that blind way. When the kindly author of the confusion discovered my attempt to restore order, she said (rather as if I were overparticular) that she supposed she hadn't given much attention to the way books were put in. Neither she, nor the housemaid, ever return an ornament, or even a piece of furniture, to its place after the room is cleaned because they tell me, "they don't notice those things." They seem rather proud of it, too. But should they be? Isn't noticing things an asset?

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

DON'TS—AND OTHER MATTERS

DON'T eat yourself out of a young girl's figure. Don't neglect to take advantage of all outdoor sports. Don't make up in the country as you would in a badly lighted cabaret. Don't sit at every opportunity. This, in itself, is enough cause for enlarged pores.

Don't blot your food. Don't forget the daily bath keeps the pores clean and free to perform their normal function of throwing off waste matter.

Don't ignore the fact that your surroundings, your clothes, your mannerisms, your diet, your reading—your very thoughts—are part of you and only those of which you are proud should be retained. Almost all can be improved.

Don't forget that a graceful, attractive woman has a greater advantage than her beautiful but awkward sister. Don't ever forget that the natural way in beauty is the best.

Dear Viola Paris: I am 5 feet 2 inches tall and 18 years old. What should be my correct weight?

Can you suggest a good exercise for reducing the hips?

I've toasted bread (without butter) as fattening as plain fresh bread. Thank you.

Answer: 1. These questions of "correct" weight are almost impossible to answer satisfactorily. It all depends upon the general build and bony structure. But I should say from 105 to 112 pounds.

2. Do floor exercises that use the legs vigorously, such as the "bicycle" movement. Here is another. Lie flat on the back. Pointing the toe and keeping the knee stiff, raise the right leg as high as possible, then the left—and so on.

3. Yes.

Dear Viola Paris: I seem to have white spots on my face. I have stopped using cream as a powder base and use only "toen." Why is it strong for a girl of 16 to use cosmetics?

BROWN EYES.

Answer: It is unwise for so young a person to use cosmetics because the skin is too sensitive and fine to permit its overloading with powders and rouges and the subsequent creams needed and mostly always indiscriminately used. From your vague description, I would say that you have "whiteheads." The cleansing method is the same as for blackheads—structure of green soap, a greaseless cleanser and complete renunciation of cosmetics. Diet and elimination must be carefully regulated.

E. B. H.: Pimples and other blemishes on the body come from the same causes and can be removed in the same ways as the facial blemishes.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES McDONALD

Settling the Future.

MY dear Miss McDonald: I read your column and have listened to the advice you gave to the distressed people. Now, I wonder if you will help me and me?

My friend, whom we will call Ted, was very intimate with a young girl, four years his junior and named Bertha. He saw her seven times a week, but still had engagements with other girls. Ted "stood her up" several times. Bertha's mother said he was not treating her fairly, so they had a quarrel. The mother said Ted should see her every night in the week or not at all. Ted does not want to lose Bertha's friendship and he does not want to get married to her (at least not now). Ted must decide his future. He already sees he has carried his friendship too far. Bertha is seriously in love with him. When Ted is out with another girl, Bertha cries herself to sleep. Is she old enough (being 16) to know her mind? Would you advise Ted to see her every night and give up his other girl friends? Don't you think it will be harder for her to forget him later on—so he has no serious intentions?

As for my troubles, I am a graduate of high school, and I have several boy friends whom I know very well. It seems every boy I meet tells me he loves me and expresses the wish of marrying me some day. I always ask them to keep that to themselves and that I do not want to marry. One boy in particular has broadcast his love for the last four years. He often says, "I wish you liked me as much as your family does."

Then, another boy (the above-named Ted) always tells me his troubles and asks my advice. He tells me he loves me more than Bertha, but we are of different religion. He would not see her at all if I ask him, but as I do not know whether I really love him, I hesitate. The last time we were out together it was very hard for both of us. When I thought of him being with Bertha every night, I could not see him more than once a week. Since then I think of him all the time and I wake up in the night thinking of him. Should I tell Ted I will see him more and take him from Bertha or let her have him because she is so sure she loves him? Do you think I am in love with Ted? Please, Miss McDonald, answer these questions as soon as possible as we are waiting to decide our future.

Thanking you with the sincerest of thanks, I am,

Yours devotedly,

"CONNIE."

Waiting to decide your future! The confidence of youth. The future waits your decision as to which shall shed tears—Bertha or you. And by the time you have decided Ted will be energetically pouring out his soul to new love, and you and Bertha will be confiding to each other the intimate details of how madly Bill and Tom make out.

Dearest child, let the Teds grow to manhood and shed no tears over them as they grow! Let them find their own way in the world, while you develop loyalty and the faculty for friendship. Learn to dread the thought of hurting another woman. Accept the fact that no man is ever worth the fatal sacrifice of your own life.

And fear above all things the man who details his former loves to you. He is made of inferior stuff. Let who will be a "fellow traveler" for two years before you ever say "I do." And by that time you will be wise enough to do so weeping. Won't you "settle your future" with that as a start?

Some of the conclusions on which these opinions are built are as follows:

After a man has been bitten by an infected mosquito about ten days must elapse before he commences having chills. It is then two or three days before parasites appear in the peripheral blood. After a mosquito bites an infected man it is ten days before he becomes infected. A mosquito is not likely to become infected as the result of feeding once on blood from an infected person. As a rule, she must bite several times to become infected. In hot weather malarial mosquitoes must feed daily to keep alive and become infected.

Mosquitoes that have been living on fruits usually have yeasts and molds inside of them. These yeasts and molds interfere with the development of the malarial parasite within the mosquito. At times the enlarged ovaries of the mosquito will prevent the malarial parasite from reaching the mosquito's mouth.

Few men are capable of infecting mosquitoes even though these men have malaria. Mosquitoes infected with malaria are able to meet all the conditions necessary for infecting men.

So great are the chances again that an infected mosquito infecting a man that the disease can be controlled.

A simple and highly effective procedure is to kill the mosquitoes within the living room daily. This can be done with a fly-swatter for mosquitoes gorged with blood are easily found and killed.

On Wild Grapes

DEAR JIMMY: This is the time of the year when the marauding alien from Italy takes to our woodlands in ruthless pursuit of the wild grape for purposes which, if we can believe rumor, are not entirely devoid of alcoholic content. Afoof and by ramshackle flivver he invades the byways in such numbers that native Americans like ourselves who enjoy peace and quiet and an occasional glass of wild grape jelly, are tempted to try growing a supply of the raw materials within the protection of our own fences.

As a matter of fact, the wild grape is an excellently decorative as well as useful vine under cultivation. There are enough varieties of it to meet all average conditions of soil and situation, and they are as easy to grow as the cultivated types. Young plants, or sections of old ones which have taken firm root through by a system of natural layering, are not difficult to find in the fall and can be transplanted with success and satisfaction. Should none of these be available, cuttings can be taken from a large vine, buried butts up in the garden for the winter in order to callous, and set out when spring comes.

Yours,

GARDENER.

Adelaide has news to spread about, and this is an excellent chance. Two of her very dearest friends, and friends of Mitzi's, too! She does pause a moment before beginning her story to admire their new fall coats. They notice her felt hat trimmed with velvet and a metal buckle, too, at a glance.

The lady to the left wears a broadcloth coat bordered with caftan and nipped in at the waist by a semicircle of radiating tucks. The second coat is a fitted model that flares out at the bottom and is bordered with fox to match the wide cuffs and deep collar. Felt turbans for both, one ribbon trimmed.

SEVENTY RADIO STATIONS WILL BROADCAST FIGHT

Tunney-Dempsey Contest to Be Described to Fifty Million Listeners.

McNAMEE IS AT RINGSIDE

Seventy, and perhaps more, broadcasting stations will be ready to tie-in at 9 o'clock tonight, Eastern Standard time, for one of the most-discussed fights of the squared ring in many a moon. Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey will meet in the Soldiers Field arena some time after 9 o'clock, the exact time depending upon the preliminaries. And a corps of the best announcers in the broadcasting business will be on hand to do the battle justice for the millions of radio fans throughout the nation.

Graham McNamee will be on the air direct from the ringside for the National Broadcasting Co. hookup, assisted by Phillips Carlin, Manager of WEAF. Eugene F. Grossman, the N. B. C.'s assistant manager of plant operations and engineering, has complete charge of the technical work in connection with the broadcast and supervised the radio installation at the ringside. McNamee is due to arrive in Chicago this morning from Akron, Ohio, where he has been making a "personal appearance" at the Akron radio show.

Stations WMAQ and WGN, Chicago, have secured permission to broadcast independently and May Andrew White, the veteran sports announcer, will talk from the former, assisted by Hal G. Toiten, while Quin A. Ryan and Bill Hay, will do duty for the latter. The National Broadcasting Co.'s new 50-kilowatt transmitter at Belmont, L. I., which has recently been testing as 2XZ, will adopt WEAF's call letters tonight especially for the broadcasting of Graham McNamee's description of the battle. The new transmitter will "go on the air" at 6 o'clock, Washington time, and at 9 o'clock will be used as the key station for the coast-to-coast hookup.

In addition to the Canadian stations, CFCB and CBNB, the short wave transmitters of WBZ, Schenectady, and KDKA, Pittsburgh, will be used to reach foreign countries.

"Interest in the fight is keen in Europe, Central and South America and Australia," Rickard said. "The new short wave system will be used to send the ringside description to foreign countries. Of course, the great difference in time will be an important factor, as it will probably be between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning in Europe and when we cross the international date line in the Pacific, McNamee will be talking into the next day."

That the fight will be one of the biggest events ever put on the air may be seen from the following remarks of Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co. "The radio has recently become converted to radio broadcasting and who desires those who can not attend the fight to hear the description over the radio, phoned the National Broadcasting Co. that more than 160,000 people will be present at the fight and inquired as to how many would be listening. He was informed that approximately 50,000,000 Americans and Canadians, not to mention those on foreign shores, will receive the fight broadcast."

WMAL will go on the air with its regular program at 7:30 o'clock tonight. There will be the usual Thursday night concert by the United States Army Band from the east front of the Capitol at 7:30 o'clock, followed by the "Town Club Coffee Hour" in a musical program. However, this program will be interrupted and the station will be silent when the main bout of the fight is put on the air from Chicago. Immediately following the close of the bout the program will be resumed.

TUNNEY TO DEFEND HIS WORLD'S TITLE TONIGHT; DEMPSEY WILL WIN, IS JACK SHARKEY'S "GUESS"

CHALLENGER BACK IN OLD-TIME FORM, SAYS HUB RINGMAN

Fighting Heart Is Beating Again—Dempsey Rated 200 Per Cent Better than at Philadelphia—Aggressiveness an Advantage.

By JACK SHARKEY
(Heavyweight Championship Contender.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—In a few hours Jack Dempsey will again be heavyweight champion of the world—the first champion ever to come back and win a lost crown. That's not a prediction—it's just a guess; but it is a guess based on careful observation of both fighters.

I have visited their training camps, I have talked with both Gene and Jack, I have watched them work, and I tried to keep my eyes open for every little move that would show just how the feud lay. Jack is my pick, but it won't be any picnic for him. He'll have a harder time putting Tunney in skids than Gene had with him last year.

Law Fink, Tunney's trainer, says the champion is 75 per cent better than he was at Philadelphia. I believe Lou is right, but I also believe that Dempsey is 200 per cent better than he was then, maybe more.

Jack not only is in good physical shape, but he's got the old fighting spirit back. And that means something. He looks ferocious. And unlike Sergt. Jiggs, the Marine mascot bull dog, which is a guest of honor at Gene Tunney's camp, Jack backs up his ferocious look by action. (No offense meant, Sergt. Jiggs, you're a fine dog, but you know yourself you're not half as ferocious as you look.)

Inside Dempsey's physique, which he has rebuilt in the last year, his old fighting heart is beating again, and his is one of the fightingest hearts that ever pumped blood into the fists of a fighting man.

Gene Tunney has tremendous courage, too. He can take plenty and come back for more. He can take the right through when things look bad, but he hasn't got the fire and the snap that carries Dempsey through.

Dempsey says he will knock the champion out by the seventh round. Gene is a little more cautious. He doesn't promise to nail Jack down. He only says he will "trounce Jack Dempsey."

But regardless of that, I know it is in Gene's heart to tuck Jack in for a ten-second snooze.

Personally, I don't believe Tunney can do it. I think Jack will be on his feet with his crown on his head when the battle is over.

And if Jack thinks it will be simple to shove Gene's head in the rosin, he is mistaken. Tunney has a way of staying on his feet, much to the dismay of his opponents. Gene has never been knocked down, much less knocked out. He's tough. On the other hand, Tunney has never developed a killing punch. Of course, he has knocked out in his time but he has never specialized in showing his opponents the stars or the roof lights.

Right this minute, I think Jack can hit the harder blow, even if he has lost his crown.

GENE TUNNEY.

(By the Associated Press.)

THE CHAMPION SAYS—"I have reached the very peak of my career, and am without a bruise or hurt on the hour of battle."

"I am even more certain I will win than when I first engaged Dempsey at Philadelphia last year. I feel that as a result of another year's study and application, I have improved considerably and will win without any great difficulty."

"I hope and expect our contest will be a fairly and cleanly waged battle, which will merit the attention given it by the greatest crowd ever gathered to see a sporting event."

JACK SLEEPS IN BUNGALOW ON ROOF

Motors, With Wife, to Chicago; in Mean Disposition.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey started tonight on the real comeback trail, the trail leading out of Lincoln Fields Race Track to Chicago and Soldiers Field, where tomorrow night he will engage Gene Tunney in quest of regaining the world's heavyweight championship.

With his wife, Estelle Taylor, and a couple of friends as companions, Dempsey motored 40 miles into the city at dusk to go to his quarters—a bungalow 42 stories above the street on the

Flynn and Gibson Keep Eye On Each Other, Pegler Says

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—There has been so much talk of burglary in its various forms in connection with the impending prize fight between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey that the customers may safely conclude that no stone has been left unturned in the search for something solid with which to load the gloves in a manner of speaking. I do not mean to state or even to imply that either Mr. Tunney or Mr. Dempsey has been guilty of laundry practice or yearnings, but in the modern technique of fixing a prize fight the prize fighters themselves need not be consulted at all.

Nor would I go so far as to impute lawlessness to the Messrs. Will Gibson or Lea Percentage Flynn, except, in so far as the ethics of the prize fight profession condone, many little subtleties which might strike the layman as unsportsmanlike. However, Mr. Gibson

And the public certainly was aroused over the first production of the Tunney-Dempsey road show last year in Philadelphia, notwithstanding which interest and vigilance, Mr. Dempsey recently felt justified in intimating that arrangements were undertaken to steal his championship from him even if he had won the fight.

At the time of one of these million dollar or two million dollar productions of Mr. Rickard's it usually seems out of place to see a man who has assisted him in the final stages of his training. After a short rest, the champion and Sergt. Smith went to the library of Fred Lundin, about a mile away and read until 2 o'clock this afternoon. He then returned to camp and slept and rested all afternoon. He had dinner at 7 o'clock and retired at 10.

The champion was in a jovial frame of mind all day. He laughed and joked with members of the camp, but only a few remarks were passed concerning the fight. Tunney still feels confident of victory and so do all his friends.

Tunney stated today he will enter the ring weighing about 185 pounds. He also said his right eye is entirely well and that he is in the best of condition. The latter statement was substantiated by Trainer Lou Fink, who has been associated with Tunney for five years. Manager Billy Gibson, Jimmy Bronson and Eddie Egan went into Chicago this morning to arrange the final details of Tunney's arrival tomorrow.

JACK DEMPSEY.

(By the Associated Press.)

THE CHALLENGER SAYS—"I am ready for Gene Tunney this time. I will win decisively. I think I am good enough now to finish Tunney inside of seven rounds. If he happens to last the limit, I am sure I will be far enough out in front to win the decision."

"If Tunney will stand up and fight it will not take long. If I have to chase him, I will catch up with him. I want the referee, whoever he is, to make us fight, and give me all that is coming to me, nothing more."

TUNNEY RUNS FIVE MILES ON ROAD

Champion in Library in Afternoon; Goes to Bed at 10.

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 21.—Gene Tunney will leave for Chicago tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The champion will be escorted into the city by two police squad cars in charge of Mike Grady, deputy chief of detectives.

No one around the champion's camp seems to know Tunney's destination although Gene said today in a joking manner that he would go to the Hotel Sherman and occupy the house on the roof. Dempsey, it is understood, will live in the bungalow on the roof of the Morrison. Tunney, however, is expected to be hidden away in Chicago until he leaves for the stadium in Grant Park.

The champion was up early and covered about five miles on the road. He was accompanied by Sergt. Bill Smith, who has acted as his personal bodyguard ever since he arrived at his Cedar Crest training camp. He had breakfast at 9:30 o'clock. His meal consisted of orange juice, prunes, cereal, boiled eggs and milk.

After breakfast, Tunney gave every member of his camp a $30 ticket to the fight. He also thanked all who had assisted him in the final stages of his training. After a short rest, the champion and Sergt. Smith went to the library of Fred Lundin, about a mile away and read until 2 o'clock this afternoon. He then returned to camp and slept and rested all afternoon. He had dinner at 7 o'clock and retired at 10.

MARKED CONTRAST SEEN IN STYLE, TYPE OF RIVAL FIGHTERS

East vs. West, Miner vs. Clerk, Killer vs. Gentleman to Furnish Pugilism's Masterpiece—Povich Favors Tunney.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
Sports Editor of The Post.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21.—On the morrow, the clang of the little old, tarnished old, battered old bell, in a neutral corner of the 20-foot ring pitched in the center of Soldiers Field, will send into battle Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, the one to defend the heavyweight championship of the world, and the other to reclaim it, if he can.

Again the bypaths of the lives of these two men have converged. Again they meet, with the lens of the world upon them, to battle under the law for the championship. East meets West at Chicago tomorrow and the world is gripped with anticipation of the outcome of gilliam's masterpiece.

Gene Tunney, champion, and son of the East, meets the youth who came out of the West in 1919 and in that boiling pine cauldron at Toledo battered the heavyweight crown from the head of Jess Willard, gaining for Jack Dempsey the popularity that has never waned.

Who could forecast in those days, before Tex Rickard transformed prize fights into spectacles that Gene Tunney, the Greenwich Village lad, some day would be meeting young Jack Dempsey, mule-driver in the Colorado mines for the world's heavyweight championship and that Tunney would win the championship from Dempsey and that he would defend it against Dempsey here tomorrow?

As different as the day and the night have the lives of Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey been cast, yet again they meet—the hobo from the West and the aspiring young gentleman from the East—in a prize fight with the world's championship as a common goal.

And in the meeting Jack Dempsey provides the color, the drama, and the spectacle: Tunney the coolness, the calmness, and the commercialism of boxing.

The youth, now grown to man, who rode his way on the rails to the East, to make a living at fighting, has scaled the heights and in the declining days of his career he is trying to reclaim the glory that boxing's greatest, self-admitted hobo, a veritable bum in the days that he first started to fight, he won his way to the top through a succession of stirring knockouts, all the while expressing his desire to fight and adopting the game as his profession.

He fought in the days before the "big gates" and he has made more money in the ring than any other boxer, but without him has retained the fighting heart that has stamped him the idol of the ring in victory or defeat.

And Gene Tunney, the Greenwich Village lad, what manner of man is he, who does not conceal his dislike for prize fighting but wins his way to the championships by sensational victory over Jack Dempsey last year at Philadelphia—over the man whom the world did not think could be defeated?

A New Yorker, born and bred, Gene Tunney like any other boy soon found an interest in boxing and abandoned a clerical job for the adier money that was to be found in the ring. He served his country admirably in the war and rose to the position of foremost contender in France during the war, returning to this country something of a national idol.

But then (how unlike Dempsey!) his interest in fighting waned. He fought and he won many fights and he rose to the position of foremost contender under the burden of feeling that fighting was a waste of time.

Whitney Colt Wins Race In Drive

D. C. Boy Also Rides The Tartar, Which Takes Opener.

Maryland's Autumn Racing Debut Is Auspicious.

Special to the Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 21.—The Whitney family played a prominent part in the opening of the fall racing season which was staged at Havre De Grace this afternoon. Harry Payne Whitney furnished the winner of the opening event in the Tartar, and also in the afternoon's feature race, the Quikfire Handicap, when his good looking Peter Pan colt, Macaw, began a field of the best sprinters on the ground. In the second race Mrs. Payne Whitney's Catsey was the winner, so all in all it was not such a bad start for the family. In the fifth, Saxon and Peter Pan finished one, two.

Jockey Sonny Workman had the mounts on both of the Harry Payne Whitney racers, both of which were well played favorites. On Macaw, Workman stood out. He handled his mount like a veteran and Macaw was going away in the last two yards by a length from the Maryland-owned Canter.

It was a field of eleven that went to the post in the Quikfire, and starter Milton sent the field away promptly to a moving start. Ethel was the quickest to get going, and she moved along in rapid fashion.

She held command until well inside the final furlong before she began to falter, and when she did she stopped badly and was beaten out half a length by Ethel for the short end of the purse.

Macaw, the winner, was away none too well, being ninth at the break. This did not rattle Workman any, and in the first furlong he was content in assuming a nice position in back of the packmen. He held the Whitney racer in hand the first half-mile and never made a move until they were straightened out for the final run through the home stretch.

Then he shook Macaw up and the latter responded like a stake horse, moving up fast, and at the end he won in clever fashion, drawing away at every stride. Ethel, who finished third, closed an immense gap, finishing with a great rush. It was a fine gathering that turned out to give the meeting a good send-off, which gives every indication that the meeting will be a hummer.

Philadelphia and Baltimore sent large delegations, while Washington's quota came over in two special trains.

During the afternoon the stewards issued a couple of rulings which brought suspensions against riders. C. Phillips was suspended five days for rough riding in the race, and E. Barnes was given the remainder of the meeting for unsatisfactory riding.

The officials are evidently determined that the sport in Maryland this fall shall be clean and free of rough riding and that the racing be above reproach. Backpage was an easy winner in the sixth, for which Nat Evans was well supported. The former was lucky and the latter unlucky at the break. This sold the sale and accounted for the result. Backpage, off well, trailed Maxima until straightened out on the backstretch, where he went to the front and rounded the far turn, drew away into a commanding lead, having a five-length advantage entering the home stretch. Nat Evans, off slow, was buffeted going to the first turn. Inside the furlong pole he made a resolute effort, and for a time it looked like he would get to the leaders when the final time came, however, he weakened, and Backpage beat him out three lengths.

LISENBECK CHECKS BROWNS AND NATS WIN, 10 TO 0

Ganzel Leads Harrismen At Bat

Visitors Held to Five Hits; Also Field Poorly.

Nats Hold 3d Place Tie With Tigers, Who Also Win.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WITH the St. Louis team yesterday winning the first of three games, the Nats' record was 10 to 0, the triumph enabling the Harrismen to hold their place third in the league, who gave the Yanks a good trimming.

The visitors could not hit and they could not field, the result being that yesterday's affair was a contest in name only. Horace Lisenbeck was on the pitching line for the Nats and he granted but five hits, only one pair being clustered.

So effective was the force of Memphis rookie, that only one Brownie got as far as third while only three others reached second in safety.

All of the 10 runs scored by the Nats were charged to Elmer Vangilder, who was Howley's mound starter, but he really should not be blamed for much of the half of them, for his mates supported him miserably.

The Nats broke the tie in the third inning when only two hits were needed to give them five runs. All of this damage came with two outs. Three alien errors were charged. One gave S. Rice a hit, but he died stealing and Harris began to H. Rice. And then the fun began.

Ganzel started the advance with a triple down the left-field line. For the next few minutes, the plate must have looked like a pendulum to Vangilder, for he walked Goslin, Judge and Tate in rapid succession, forcing Ganzel over. Then Bluege lined to left. This scored two runs and both he and Tate registered when Williams' return peg was made and Sisler, who chased the ball, then threw wildly past O'Neill.

Two cheap double opportunities in the sixth, when Gillis led off with a liner-triple to right-center, and in the seventh, when Ganzel, first up, doubled but was left, but nothing was overlooked in round 8, when four more markers were molded on five solid strikes and some smart base-running by Ganzel, who scored all on an infield out from second on an infield out.

One was dead when Lisenbeck singled, and then followed one-shots in rapid order off the balls of Rice, Harris, Gaudin and Goslin. These netted three runs and brought Ernie Nevers to the enemy hill.

Judge was out, Sisler to Nevers, and while this pair was collaborating Ganzel kept on going from the middle cushion and scored with a single. This former Baron, incidentally, costarred with Lisenbeck. In addition to proving that his head is something more than an empty vessel, he was credited with four hits and a walk in five times at the bat, including a triple and two doubles. One of these was a home run, but his other three hits were real ones. Gillis, the other Birmingham youngster in the game, looked good and cracked a triple, which was an honest-to-goodness clout almost to the scoreboard.

Bluege, Sam Rice and Harris continued two hits each, the latter being the only Nats to go hitless.

Wichita Falls Wins From New Orleans

Wichita Falls, Tex., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Wichita Falls, champions of the Texas League, won the first game of the Dixie series from New Orleans, Southern Association champions, 2 to 0 today. A brace of doubles in the fifth sent over the first score, and errors proved the way for the second score in the eighth.

Walter Johnson to Hurt Against Brownies Today

Nine Nationals to Be Excused for Season Next Week—Pitchers Sams and Haley Get Trials for Team.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Browns and Nationals will meet again at the Clark Griffith stadium this afternoon, with Walter Johnson being scheduled to do the Washington pitching. The Old Master has had a long rest in his workout yesterday seemed to have plenty of stuff. He probably will find Milton Gaston on the hill opposing him.

Although the present American League season does not end until October, several of the Nats will be excused early next week. The Harrismen's schedule is responsible for this. Boss Bucky does not want to drag his whole contingent on the trip to Boston and New York next week, and as there is only one more game to be played after this jaunt, he figures that he might just as well let the youngsters go home.

Cochi Al Schacht will remain home for a few days and put the youngsters through their paces, then he will join the team and the stay-at-homes be excused. This applies to Pitchers Ralph Judd, Paul Hopkins, Joe Carroll and Clayton Vanilder, Outfielder Atkins, and Infielders John Brewer, Jack Hayes and Buddie Dear.

Sammy West, of course, also will be left at home, but he will spend the remainder of his time here in the hospital. His tonsil operation was successful, but when he fully recovers from this he is due to remain in bed for about two weeks longer with his "charley horse" leg in a plaster cast.

Two more young pitchers were given trials by the Nationals yesterday. One was Milton Haley, a right-handed semi-pro who hurled the First National Bank team to the St. Petersburg (Fla.) sandlot title. In the deciding game of this set he held his opponents to but three scattered hits.

Admiral Cary Grayson is sponsor for the other young hopeful who reported yesterday. This lad, christened Charlie Sams, has been performing for the Annapolis Athletic Club semipro team since last Saturday and Sunday games, Sams playing first base on the week day and pitching on the Sabbath. He reported as a moundman and showed considerable stuff yesterday while hurling in the Nats' stick drill. He is only 22 years of age and is over 6 feet tall.

"Water" Kress, a shortstop recently purchased by the Browns from the New York Yankees, was seen yesterday at Manager Dan Howley here yesterday.

"Red" Barnes, one of the three Birmingham youngsters who joined the Nationals Monday, has pulled up with a sore thumb on his right hand.

The digit was hurt when he reported, but he failed to mention it, hoping it would get better. It was so sore yesterday, however, that he had to go to Trainer Mike Martin for treatment. As the injury affects his pitching, he will not be used until reported O. K. again.

Manager Harris yesterday had several nice things to say about young Hubert Atkinson, the Chicago semipro outfielder signed some time ago by the Nats. Although this lad had participated in but an inning of the game, he has looked particularly good in practice. "He sure can cover ground," said the Nat pilot, "and has an ideal temperament for a big player. I don't know whether or not he can hit, for he has had little opportunity at the bat, but he will get a good trial at Tampa next spring."

No Changes in Clubs Planned in Western

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Following a six-hour conference between eight Western League club presidents, President Dale Gear announced early today there would be no change in the 1928 circuit.

This announcement dispelled the rumor that Tulsa and Oklahoma City were to withdraw in favor of the Texas League.

San Francisco, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The San Francisco Call says it has authoritative information that the United States Golf Association has virtually decided to hold the 1929 national amateur championship at the Pebble Beach course, Del Monte, Calif. Definite announcement of the selection, it is said, will be made at the annual meeting of the national body in New York in November.

Ahepa Bowlers Open Season September 26

The Ahepa Duckpin League of Washington, Chapter 31, will begin its second season on September 26 at the Coliseum alleys. Matches will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays during the season. The league is composed of the following teams, who derive their names after famous Greek characters: Plato, Pericles, Socrates, Aristotle, Hercules and Hermes.

C. U. Squad Leaves For Williamsburg

A squad of 32 strong, including the coach, McAuliffe, trainer, and managers will leave by bus this morning for Williamsburg, where it will have two practice sessions tonight and tomorrow night under game conditions. The players engaged in a long kicking drill in their final practice at the stadium, followed by a brief signal play.

The C. U. coach has not definitely decided upon the team to start against William and Mary, but named a tentative first team that line up as follows: Howell, left end; Dufour, left tackle; Saffo, left guard; Linskey, center; Zeno, right guard; Ralsch or Harding, right tackle; Long, right end; Capt. Foley or Murphy, quarterback; Smythe or Harvey, halfbacks; and Malevich or Schmidt, fullbacks.

Tigers Beat Yanks; Homer 55 for Ruth

New York, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Yankees gave their worst fielding exhibition of the season here today and lost the opening game of a series to Detroit by 6 to 1, running the Bengal winning streak to seven. Sam Gibson pitched a strong game for the Tigers and had the New Yorkers shut out until Babe Ruth hit his fifty-fifth home run of the year in the ninth.

Not only were the Huggins guilty of six errors, but all sorts of mental lapses cropped out with throws to wrong bases and failures to throw the ball.

Philadelpha, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians took the opening game of the series with the Athletics today by a score of 6 to 5, winning on singles by Fonseca and Hodapp in the ninth inning.

Ty Cobb played his last game of the season with the Athletics today and left for the West tonight. Cobb is going on a hunting trip in Wyoming and announced before leaving that he was undecided about playing next year. The Georgian said Connie Mack wanted him to play again next year and stood ready to renew his contract at the same figure.

Red Sox Rally in 9th To Beat Chicago, 3-2

Boston, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Pinch hitting in the last half of the ninth with one on base and two out, Red Hollings drove out a double that enabled Boston to defeat Chicago, 3 to 2 in the opening game of the series here today. With one out, Connelly walked Myer, Todd sacrificed, and the stage was set for Hollings. Weiser let Chicago down with six hits, but two fast double-plays lifted him out of tight places.

Butcher, Baker, Candlestick Maker Gather for Big Bout

Fifty Planes Expected to Bring Fight Fans; Hotels Jammed; Special Trains and Autos Rolling Into Windy City.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Who's Who in America stepped out of pages in a book tonight and became a swarming crowd of human beings that poured into Chicago by train, boat, airplane and automobile.

They were the advance guard of thousands from the four corners of the Nation, expected to arrive tomorrow to witness the greatest prize fight spectacle in history—the Tunney-Dempsey battle in Soldier Field.

There were governors, senators, film stars, novelists, industrial leaders, steel kings, mayors, publishers, actors, railroad presidents, millionaires and others not so rich, but all pouring in, all seeking hotel accommodations and, in some cases, tickets for the fight.

Every hotel was jammed to capacity, filling reservations made weeks ago. The lobbies were beehives of buzz, buzz, buzz, concerning Tunney's chances against Dempsey, or Dempsey's chances against Tunney.

Army Poloists Win Over Ramblers' Four

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Coming from behind in the last chapter of play for a typical Army finish, the United States Army triumphed over the Ramblers in the first open championship polo match here today by six goals to five. Brilliant play by Malcolm Stevenson, aided by Bobby Strawbridge Jr., put the Ramblers in front by five goals to four up to the start of the last period. The Army then put on a true Garrison finish, thundering through for two goals to clinch the struggle.

Hagen Seeks Interest In Rochester Club

Toronto, Ontario, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The Toronto Globe says Walter Hagen, noted golfer, has told friends he will shortly become part owner of the Rochester Baseball Club of the International League. John Ganzel, long in the Hagen household, is expected to follow with Hagen in ownership of the club, the newspaper says.

BOWLERS REORGANIZE.

The Holy Rosary bowling team of last season has reorganized under the name of Holy Rosary All-Stars, and are seeking games with strong bowling teams. The following comprise the team: Marcellino, Ganna, Balducci, F. Ferraro, J. Ferraro and Nicro. For games call Manager Ganna at Main 4694 after 5 o'clock.

Chief of Police Hughes says approximately 50,000 out-of-town motorists will come for the fight. He warned them to park some distance from the roaring loop, and take elevated trains and street cars or buses downtown. No parking whatever will be permitted Thursday in the eastern half of the loop.

Promoter Tex Rickard will establish a huge box office for the last-day ticket purchasers in Grant Park tomorrow. It will be located on Michigan boulevard between Tenth and Eleventh streets. Rickard anticipates a tremendous rush for seats at the last minute.

Five tons of hams, aside from those selected by Mr. Rickard to perform in the preliminary bouts, will be cut into 200,000 or more buns for consumption in the stadium. There also will be 300,000 bottles of mineral water, 150,000 bottles of pop, etc., sold by a force of more than 700 men.

Although fair, cool weather is forecast for tomorrow night, merchants did a land office business today in selling slickers and raincoats and top coats.

The Lithuanian-American Chamber of Commerce tendered a luncheon to Jack Sharkey today, presenting him with a silver loving cup.

Greenville Club Wins Dixie Championship

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Greenville, winners of the South Atlantic League pennant, today captured the Dixie class B championship by defeating Portsmouth, Virginia League champions, 5 to 4, giving the Spinners a margin of 4 to 1 in the series.

McCarthy to Manage Cubs Again in 1928

Chicago, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Joe McCarthy will boss the Chicago Cubs for the next three years. He signed a contract covering 1928, 1929 and 1930 yesterday.

William Veck, president of the club, said that McCarthy would have complete cooperation from the club owner in the strengthening of the team.

GERMAN OUT INDEFINITELY.

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—Bud Gorman, American heavyweight, will be unable to appear in the ring for several months, it was announced today by medical examiners who examined his sprained knee, which he received in the fourth round of his bout with Harry Persson, Sweden's champion, last Sunday. Gorman is now confined to bed and his wife and two-year-old son are with him.

The Corinthian Midgets are seeking a game for Sunday Club Lincoln 4005-W between 6 and 7 o'clock.

PIRATES GAIN AS RIVALS IDLE

Defeat Robins, 4 to 2. L. Waner Breaks Singles Record.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 21 (A.P.).

Pittsburgh closed out the series with the Robins, a 4-to-2 victory today, thereby regaining a three-and-one-half game lead in the National pennant race, as the Giants and Cards, who are tied for second place, were idle.

John Miljus, former Brooklyn player who was purchased in midseason from Seattle of the Coast League by the Pirates, yielded only five hits against nine gathered off McWeeny, of the Robins. The Corsair attack was concentrated in the fourth inning when four bingles and McWeeny's wildness allowed four runs to cross the plate.

After one batter had been retired, Grantham singled and reached second safely when McWeeny made a bad throw on an attempted force-out on a grounder by Harris. Gooch drove Grantham home with a single, putting Harris at second. Harris romped over the plate on a wild pitch and Gooch went to third. Miljus struck out, Gooch scored as Lloyd Waner beat out a hit. The latter stole second, and after Barnhart was given a pass, Paul Waner scored his brother with a single.

A double by Flowers and Butler's single gave the Robins a run in the eighth. Stutz reached first in Harris' futile in the ninth, went to second on an infield out and counted on Hendrick's single.

Lloyd Waner made three singles to set a new modern major league record for one-base hits in a season. He tied the old mark of 176, achieved by Johnny Tobin with the Browns in 1921, during yesterday's game.

EFFICIENCY BUREAU DESIRES CHILDREN TAKEN FROM POLICE

Recommendation Made to Commissioners They Be Put Under Welfare Board.

GOVERNMENT HOTEL IS URGED FOR HOME

Mrs. Van Winkle to Appear at Hearing Today to Fight Proposal.

A storm broke over the head of the House of Detention and the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department yesterday when Herbert D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, filed with the Board of District Commissioners, a recommendation in crisp language that custody and care of children until 17 years of age be immediately taken from the Woman's Bureau and lodged with the Board of Public Welfare. He asks that children and adult women be no longer treated as similar by the police. Lieut. Mina Van Winkle, commanding officer of the Woman's Bureau, was summoned by the Commissioners to meet at 11 a. m. today with the Commissioners and Brown in Dougherty's office to thrash out the question.

Move Called Mystery.

Some degree of mystery was maintained concerning the move of the Bureau. Brown's letter said that reasons for the recommendation had been "carefully outlined" to Commissioner Dougherty and would be "submitted at a later date." They were omitted from the letter. The full text of the letter follows:

"As requested, I am outlining briefly our suggestions of a suitable place for the reception and detention of children under 17 years of age arrested by the police or held as witnesses or held pending final investigation or examination or otherwise in the District of Columbia.

Alternative Is Proposed.

"As an alternative to these recommendations your consideration is invited to the following suggestions: (1) That the Police Department accept the offer of the Housing Corporation to permit the use of the R-S Building of the Government Hotels on payment at the rate of $3,000 per annum for heat, water and other service for a receiving home for children under 17 years of age apprehended by the police or temporarily held pending investigation or examination or otherwise by the Juvenile Court or the Board of Public Welfare; and (2) that the Board of Public Welfare be invited to organize a proper staff to manage said home under direction of the director of public welfare, the expenses of both maintaining such a home and its staff to be paid for out of the balance of the appropriation of $31,740 now used to maintain the House of Detention.

35-Page Declaration

Filed in Damage Suit

A 35-page declaration containing about 10,000 words, believed to be the longest of its kind, was filed yesterday in Circuit Court by Attorneys Cromelin, Laws & Gray, counsel for Adam Howell, 2936 Bellevue place northwest, who seeks to recover $50,000 damages from Sanderford Jarman and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Jarman, of 2131 Florida avenue northwest, for personal injuries.

The declaration says that Howell was struck by the Jarman automobile after lighting from a street car at Wisconsin avenue and Garfield street on April 12.

STORES SHOULD EDUCATE PATRONS, SAYS RETAILER

Must Encourage Style Appreciation, Dry Goods Association Delegates Told.

INDIVIDUALITY IS SOUGHT

It is the duty of a department store to educate its customers, C. A. Weisenberger, of Baltimore, yesterday told delegates to the seventh annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association at the Willard Hotel. He declared the store's function is not merely to sell, but also to encourage in its customers appreciation of good style.

He blamed advertisers for creating the belief that "furniture is the last thing to be bought in prosperous times and the first thing to be curtailed in times of depression," by failing to teach people that they will be judged as much by their furniture as by their automobile.

Approval Accorded

TO TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Commissioners Indorse Harland Plan for Rhode Island Avenue.

The District Commissioners yesterday approved Director of Traffic W. H. Harland's design of an automatic traffic signal system for Rhode Island avenue, from Iowa Circle to Fourth street northwest.

This installation provides for synchronized operation of traffic lights except at Seventh street and at Florida and New Jersey avenues, where individual timers will be used to permit a variation in the "go" intervals due to heavier north and south traffic, and except between North Capitol and Fourth streets northeast, where there will be no lights, due to a heavy grade and lighter traffic across Rhode Island avenue. There will be signal lights at Rhode Island avenue and Fourth street.

Most Near East Funds

Are Expended in U. S.

A large part of the money donated in the United States for Near East Relief is expended in the United States for supplies, it was stated yesterday at the headquarters of Potomac Division, Near East Relief. A recent report shows that in one year 7,646,331 pounds of supplies needed in the relief work was purchased here in America. Included in the purchases were flour, milk, rice and tents.

YOUTH UNHURT AS GLIDER PLUNGES FROM 150 FEET

Plane Designer, 20, Towed by Auto, Falls When Rope Snaps.

WAS TRYING FOR RECORD

An air tragedy narrowly averted yesterday when Henri Dashiell Wright, 20 years old, 2566 University place northwest, crashed from an altitude of 150 feet in glider which he attempted to break records for continuous flight at Groveton flying field, near Alexandria, Va. The glider was being towed by an automobile when the tow rope snapped and the fragile craft, caught by a puff of wind, shot upward nose first until the breeze abated, when it went into a tail spin and crashed. Wright climbed out of the wreckage uninjured, except for a few bruises.

Earlier in the day the craft made two successful flights from hills near the field while being pulled by field employees. Wright, and Sydney Solomon, 1752 Lanier place northwest, with whom he built the glider, decided they were not flying high enough to make any sustained flight and it occurred to them that their glider would rise higher if towed by an automobile. Accordingly, A. W. Burdette, proprietor of the field, was pressed into service as chauffeur. Wright swung himself into the pilot's seat.

NATIONAL CAPITAL MERCHANTS DISCUSS DAYLIGHT SAVINGS

Trade Body Names Committee to Investigate Feasibility of Plan.

PRINTERS HEADQUARTERS SOUGHT FOR WASHINGTON

Study Authorized for Better Marking of Highway Approaches to City.

Prospects of daylight savings time for the National Capital next year loomed yesterday with the appointment of a committee to investigate the matter and make a report in the near future as to the feasibility of the plan. The subject was brought up before the first fall meeting of the board of governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Broad Problem Discussed.

Secretary Edward D. Shaw was instructed to make a study for the better marking of the highways leading to and from Washington. With the exception of one or two roads, it was said, tourists coming to the city found it difficult to get into the city and find their way out again.
